Foch as Teacher
The World Kaleidoscope
China Tried Communism
Selfishness as Main Spring
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921.

Marshal Foch continues his triumphal procession through the United States. Today he sees Detroit, industrial miracle that no Balzac could have imagined.

School teachers of this country, more than soldiers or any other class, are interested in Foch.

Until the war and its great opportunity came, Foch was first of all a teacher. He taught military science to French boys. When the Allies decided to put in his hand control of all the nations against Germany, he proved what has often been proved before, that the teacher who understands his theory also understands PRACTICE.

While Foch was teaching he was studying. He had stored within his own brain the thinking methods of Napoleon and other fighters.

And swiftly he went to the mark and did the work when power was given him.

The American people might learn from Foch that it would pay to have in Congress and important official bodies some of the best American teachers from schools and colleges.

Nations and governments are like a child's kaleidoscope, ever changing. H. G. Wells reminds you that the two oldest governments in Europe are under Lloyd George and Lenin. The Communist ruler outlasted as Premier every European except one.

Thoughtlessness might ask, "Can nations whose government changes constantly expect to achieve real power?"

The answer is another question by D. Shkurkin in a Russian Liberal monthly, "Is there any European state that has existed over a thousand years? China has existed for no less than five thousand years."

And China, as old as the great redwood trees in California, is, like those trees, in great danger, begging for protection.

Shkurkin's article, reproduced in that admirable publication, The Living Age, reminds you China, ages ago, made her experiments and failures in altruism and communism. Twelve hundred years ago the Chinese Prime Minister, Wan-Man, nephew of the Emperor's wife, father-in-law of the young Emperor, poisoned that young Emperor and made himself ruler.

To weaken his enemies and get the people on his side, he inaugurated Chinese "single tax."

All land was made property of the state. The richest man could keep only twelve acres and eight slaves to work the land. All other slaves were set free.

Wan-Man was murdered and his scheme fell to the ground.

A little later, in 1068, Wan-An-Shi convinced the Emperor Shan-Tsun that all wealth and all taxation should be divided equally. All grain was sold by the government at a fixed price. Farmers were allowed to borrow money for the Spring work; takes were paid in goods instead of money. An effort was made to fight big incomes, the regular army was abolished, etc.

Then came crop failure, starvation, ferocious, invading Nomads from the north. That scheme failed, and property ruled again. Emperor at the top, princes, nobles and mandarins below, and poor devils that amounted to nothing at the bottom.

So it is now in China and elsewhere. So it will be for many a year more. The devils at the bottom know a good deal more than they know now.

Bolshevism of Chinese Communism because of bad crop is, as you notice, repeated in the downfall of the Russians' effort, bad crops and famine there. Read the geographical and historical works of Eli R. Cleo. His main work, "Man and the Earth," will enable you to study the present, in the light of the past, better than any other book.

Henry Ford says that history is "bunk." It is more than that. It is the humor of the situation. A light is to a factory at night. If you don't know history you are apt to make yourself very silly, as Mr. Ford is doing just now through laughable ignorance and vicious prejudice, displayed in his attacks upon his Jewish fellow citizens.

A little knowledge of the history that he calls "bunk" would have saved him from his life's most serious mistake.

Study current events or ancient history, the attempt of Communism in Russia, or its failure in China 1,200 years ago, and you learn that humanity responds to no appeal except an appeal to its SELFISH NESS. We imagine that we are seeing new things, but we are seeing old things dressed in new clothes.

Schooner Crew Left to Die, Captain Charges

STEAMSHIP MOVES OFF AFTER THE CRASH

No Attempt Made to Rescue Men on the Singleton Palmer, Commander Asserts

Captain J. M. Griffin of No. 137 Elm street, Everett, commander of the five-masted schooner Singleton Palmer, rammed and sunk by the steamer Apache of the Clyde Line off the Fenwick Island Lightship, near Cape Henlopen, today charged that the captain and crew of the Apache made no attempt to effect a rescue.

Engineer Charles Swanson of the Singleton Palmer was washed overboard and drowned. Nine other members of the crew and Captain Griffin were saved by the Merchants and Miners Line steamship Gloucester, bound for Boston from Baltimore, which answered wireless calls for help.

Five minutes after the rescue by the Gloucester the Singleton Palmer sank, Captain Griffin declares.

He and members of the crew told an amazing story of alleged incompetence and mismanagement which resulted in the collision.

First Mate Sven Lanstrom and Thomas Jones, a negro able seaman, washed overboard, were picked up by a boat from the Apache, but Captain Griffin declares no attempt was made at any time to take them off the sinking Singleton Palmer.

When the captain and crew of the Apache landed at New York, they refused to issue any statement of how the collision occurred. Every attempt was made to "hush" the affair, according to Griffin. Members of the rescued crew also charged today on their arrival here that officials of the Merchants and Miners line attempted to prevent any publicity being given the crash.

HAS WAR RECORD.

All were outspoken in their denunciation of the Apache's violation of the ancient, unwritten law of the sea.

Captain Griffin said it was a fair, clear night, and there was no excuse for ramming his vessel. He also declared that a boat from the Apache circled around his ship three hours without making an attempt to take any of them off.

The Singleton Palmer was owned by the France-Canada Steamship Company, and was purchased by them for $300,000 in 1914. Captain Griffin commanded her when she successfully ran through the submarine zone several times while carrying ammunition during the World War.

In describing the crash to a reporter for the Boston American Captain Griffin said:

"About 1:30 Sunday morning as I was sitting in my cabin having a smoke, the boatswain came to my door and shouted: 'That steamer has changed its course again.'

BACKED OFF AFTER CRASH.

"I ran on deck. The vessel again shifted, making a collision inevitable. I shouted orders to have all hands on deck. The watch below came tumbling up just as the steamship crashed into us at full speed. The

FIRE SHOTS AS THREE ARE CAUGHT

Cambridge Police Use Guns in Fight to Capture Suspects in Tire Robbery

Shots were fired by Cambridge police today in effecting the capture of three alleged auto tire thieves discovered operating on Auburn and Brookline streets, Cambridge. Two other suspects escaped.

Following the arrests the house from which the men were operating was searched. Six cord tires were recovered.

The three taken into custody gave their names, ages and addresses as follows: James Gallagher, twenty-seven years old, Elm street, Cambridge; Reuben Heller, nineteen years old, Chestnut street, Chelsea; and Percy S. Freedman, twenty-nine, Chestnut street, Chelsea.

Patrolmen Healy and Donelan of the Central square station were informed not long after midnight that men were lugging automobile tires into a house at Brookline and Auburn streets and went to the place, getting in by a cellar window.

A few minutes later a machine drew up outside and two men got out. Donelan tried to arrest them and they ran, the policeman firing several times. One fugitive threw off his overcoat in order to run faster and in the pocket of it was found a loaded revolver. Both men escaped.

Meantime, the neighbors, alarmed by the shots, were telephoning to the police station. Lieutenant Donahue and Patrolman Mello, Kelly, Robertson and John O'Brien went to the house. Gallager and Heller were discovered in the attic, where the tires were, and Freedman, the chauffeur of the machine in which the men who got away arrived, was arrested in his car, not having made any move to escape.

Several suspects were taken in during the morning on the chance that they were the men who got away.

WIFE WILL USE COOK'S LETTERS

Endearing Notes of Harvard Professor to Be Introduced at Trial

It was his own letters to his wife that Professor Walter W. S. Cook was looking for when he broke into his wife's home at No. 179 Brattle street, Cambridge.

This information was given to the Boston American by one of Mrs. Cook's friends.

The Harvard man, so said the friend, had written some very endearing letters to his wife, which did not agree with certain charges he has made against her.

Cook asserted that Mrs. Cook, after her second marriage, was over friendly with her first husband, Professor Erke Greenfield of Tulane University.

"Why, then," asks this friend of Mrs. Cook, "if Cook believed this, did he write impassioned letters to his wife, after they had separated, in which he begged her to make up? Why did he write her she was all things his heart could desire, if he really believed the charges he made?"

Cook's letters, say the friend, are proof of Cook's faith in his wife. They were the letters he was trying to get. They were the letters he did not get, because, when he broke into his wife's house they were already in the safe keeping of Mrs. Cook's attorney, Jesse D. Crunch.

When the letters are read in court they will present a picture of love making. They are impassioned, although written after the rich and independent Mrs. Cook had turned her husband out of doors with the ultimatum—"no work, no wife."

One line of one of the letters, which covers five pages—written after expulsion from the wifely domicile—follows: "After I left, and was alone, to think, I knew I had lost the most precious treasure that ever had come into my life."

"If the professor knew he had lost the most precious treasure that had ever come into his life," why, then, does he accuse Mrs. Cook of being too friendly with her former husband?" This is what Mrs. Cook's friend asks.

HAD ONE MANIA.

"Mrs. Cook married Cook because she was a woman of means, and thought he would be of help to her in managing her affairs. She imagined she saw in him what she hoped would develop into a real man, under her guidance.

"But Cook has one mania which is worse than many beautiful passion for scholarly loafing, while anybody pays his bills. It was very evident to Mrs. Cook shortly after the wedding that he had married her not for any sentiment of love, but merely as a handy means of paying the bills, while he pursued his scholarly, lengthy researches.

"Cook had hardly married her when he left her to go to Europe. Do you think he would have deserted his bride so soon if he had any real feeling for her? While he was doing Paris, moreover, she became very ill. "She wrote to him that she did not

RUNAWAY IMPERILS SCORES

Team Halted on Winter Street After Officer Is Hurled to Ground, Driver Hurt

Scores on crowded Tremont and Winter streets were stampeded today when a two-horse team, dragging a loaded American Railway Express wagon, dashed frantically through the throngs from Hamilton place.

The frightened crowd had barely recovered its breath when it was thrilled by the sight of two heroic attempts to halt the maddened horses.

Mounted Officer Emerald Emery of the traffic squad, stationed at Tremont and Winter streets, heard the thundering hoof beats of the runaways and leaped for the flying reins. For fifty feet he was dragged, until his grip broke and he rolled into the gutter, tearing his uniform to tatters and sustaining a score of bruises.

Robert Gordon, a civilian, of No. 15 Washington street, seeing that the officer had been downed, jumped to his turn at the reins and he also was dashed aside, dragged many feet and finally shaken off by the flying hoofs.

But Gordon and Emery between them had managed to turn the team from Tremont into Winter street, and there an unknown, quick-thinking driver of another wagon, seeing what was happening, turned his vehicle across narrow Winter street, near Washington.

The trick worked. The rear wheels of the express wagon caught in the rear wheels of the unknown's wagon, and gave Emery, who had recovered time to come up with the team and again seize the reins, Gordon, following his lurch, but still plucky, jumped for the other horse and the team was brought to a standstill close to a large plate glass window.

Thomas J. Sullivan of No. 58 Dawson street, Dorchester, driver of the express wagon, was seriously hurt. He was hurled to the street as the runaways turned into Winter street, and two wheels of the heavy wagon passed over him fracturing the left leg and leaving and bruising the other. He was taken to City Hospital.

As the officer approached, the negro released his hold on the girls and fled. Fitzpatrick followed, chasing him to his room at No. 11 Paul street, South End, where he placed him under arrest on charges of assault and battery. The prisoner gave

The charge that Daniel H. Coakley gave false testimony during the trial of Nathan A. Tufts, recently removed as District Attorney of the Northern District, was made at the continued disbarment proceedings before the Massachusetts Supreme Court today.

This new charge, together with another alleging extortion in the Mishawum Manor case, was contained in an amended petition offered by counsel for the Boston Bar Association, and ordered entered by Justice Edward P. Pierce.

COAKLEY ACCUSED OF GIVING FALSE TESTIMONY IN TUFTS CASE

PERJURY AND NEW EXTORTION CHARGE IN BAR ASSOCIATION'S AMENDED PETITION

Judge Pierce set next Wednesday morning as the time when Coakley's revised appeal for a change of venue should be heard, together with a demand for specifications from the Boston Bar Association.

By general consent the same date was set for a hearing on the disclaimer filed by counsel for William J. Corcoran, co-defendant with Coakley in the disbarment proceedings, together with Daniel V. McIsaac.

McIsaac's answer to the charges against him was filed today, after a considerable delay, and it is expected that the date of his trial will be set by the court Wednesday morning.

The new charges against Coakley were contained in an amended petition filed by counsel for the Bar Association, and offered by Robert G. Dodge, whose fellow-counsel, Andrew J. Marshall and J. J. McCarthy, were also present.

PERJURY CHARGED.

Those charges accused Coakley of having testified falsely during the trial of Nathan A. Tufts, who was removed from the office of district attorney of the northern district, and also with exhorting large sums of money from divers persons in connection with the Mishawum Manor case.

The original charges were also considerably strengthened and amplified in the amended petition, a copy of which was furnished Coakley.

Attorney Dodge also offered a motion asking that permission be issued authorizing the taking of oral interrogatories and the depositions of Hiram Abrams, one of the men alleged to have been blackmailed in the Mishawum Manor case; Dorothy Cote, the woman alleged to have been forced to surrender an automobile, and Charles Cronin, a lawyer, concerned in the James B. Monroe-Catherine Lord case. Both these motions were allowed by general consent.

Attorney McCarthy then informed the court that it was the desire of the Bar Association to have all the cases set for hearing at as early dates as possible.

COAKLEY ASKS DELAY.

Attorney Coakley informed Judge Pierce that he, Coakley, in view of the amended petition, was in much the same shape as when he met the court two weeks ago.

"The amended petition," he said, "changes the aspect of eight or nine charges and introduces about three new ones. I will want to take depositions myself and I will need a long time to prepare my defence as the Bar Association has been working on the case for three years.

"I ought to have a long time—several months at least. I also have a motion which Justice Braley gave me permission to introduce, relating to the transfer of my case to the Superior Court. The motion was gotten ready, but would not fit the substitute motion of the Bar Association. I ought to have specifications on certain charges, particularly where it is alleged that I testified falsely before a hearing in this court.

"As I understand it," replied Judge Pierce, "you don't want to file your motion now as you feel it should be a new one."

"Yes, your honor," replied Coakley, "This should be done at once," said the court, referring to the filing of the new petition.

"I can hardly do it today," Coakley said.

"NO POWER TO TRANSFER."

Then ensued a controversy as to the question of transferring the trial to the Superior Court, when Judge Pierce said:

"I suspect this court has no power to transfer any of its power to the Superior Court save as the statutes may instruct."

Attorney Coakley became somewhat heated, and declared that the court should certainly make such a transfer if it felt that it could not give him a fair trial.

"Why not transfer it to the Municipal Court?" asked Judge Pierce; and then, without waiting for a reply, he said he did not care to go into that matter at this time.

"The matter might well be argued tomorrow morning," he concluded. To this Coakley objected on the ground that he needed more time, and the court acted him what day would be acceptable.

"A week from tomorrow morning or a week from this morning," replied Attorney Coakley.

"Assuming that the court has the power to do this," said Judge Pierce, "you may that there are some things regarding which you could be more particularity in the form of specifications."

"Yes, your honor," replied Coakley.

"I am trying to take up the two questions at the same time," said the court.

Continuing, the court said:

"I think the question of the law, and the question of the petition can be taken up on Wednesday morning. If it happens that the court shall determine it has the power to transfer the case to the Superior Court we will take it up later. The power to transfer and the motion for further specifications should take the form of petitions and be ready for hearing Wednesday."

PELLETIER AND COAKLEY.

A feature of the amended petition was the evident attempt on the part of the Bar Association to link more closely together Coakley and District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier.

In the first charge Coakley was accused of conspiring with the district attorney of Suffolk County, or the district attorney for the northern district of Massachusetts, or both. In the second charge Coakley was alleged to have extorted each from [illegible] "for the use of his alleged personal influence with the district attorney of Suffolk County."

In Charge No. 4 it was alleged that "he has exploited his intimate friendship and his reputed influence with the district attorney of Suffolk County, by alleging such relationship and the possession of said personal influence with the district attorney as a basis of charging or attempting to charge divers persons large and excessive sums of money in prosecuting criminal prosecutions, which had been instituted or threatened or which were being pressed by such persons to be threatened."

In the fifth charge, Coakley was accused of conspiring with the district attorney of Suffolk County and utilizing "the threat of criminal prosecution as a means of forcing a settlement of civil cases."

In these accusations no details were given, but in Charge No. 8 Coakley was alleged to have extorted $50,000 from the Emerson Motor Company as a fee "for undertaking to use his personal influence with the said district attorney to save said company from indictment."

Again in the case of Warren C. Daniel, it was charged that Coakley attempted to extort a fee of $10,000, "ostensibly for using his personal influence and influence with the district attorney of Suffolk County to persuade the latter not to indict the Metropolitan Motors Company."

Pelletier also was mentioned in connection with the Rigolo case, in the charge being made that Coakley represented to William D. Ford that he, Coakley, had sufficient influence with the district attorney to prevent an indictment.

CHARGES CONSPIRACY.

Unlike the accusation of false testimony by Coakley, the Bar Association went into detail in connection with the other new charge. This, which was numbered fourteen, was as follows:

"During the year 1917 the said Coakley entered into a conspiracy with the district attorney of the northern district of Massachusetts and others to extort from divers persons who had been present at Mishawum Manor, Woburn, large sums of money under the threat and menace of the institution and prosecution of criminal accusations and of proceedings on sundry civil claims and the notoriety which would accompany the institution of such proceedings.

"Pursuant to said conspiracy, while acting as attorney for the persons so threatened and knowing that said persons believed that he, the said Coakley, had influence with the said district attorney by reason of which influence with the said district attorney by reason of which influence he could prevent the institution and prosecution of said criminal proceedings and misleading said person with respect to the existence and pendency of said very civil claims, demanded and received as a charge for his services as such attorney, sums of money grossly in excess of a fair and reasonable charge for any legitimate services performed or to be performed by him."

Abrams, whose oral interrogatory and deposition the Bar Association asked permission to take, was one of the motion pictures men who claimed to have been blackmailed as a result of their presence at a dinner at Mishawum Manor, staged and managed by "Brownie" Kennedy.

McISAAC CASE UP.

Coakley retired to a seat, and the case of the Bar Association against Daniel McIsaac was called.

Attorney Dodge then informed the court that Attorney McAnarney, who entered an appearance for McIsaac today, wished to confer with counsel for the Bar Association, and that they were willing for the matter to go over to Wednesday. The order to this effect was issued by Judge Pierce, and Attorney McIsaac, who had been an interested spectator, left the court room.

Cox Proclaims Armistice Holiday

Governor Cox today issued a proclamation requesting the people of Massachusetts to observe Armistice Day, Friday, as a holiday.

In addition to the formal, general observances which mark a holiday, Governor Cox asked that church bells be tolled from 11.45 o'clock until noon and that two minutes of silent prayer be made at noon in thanksgiving for the sacrifices made and to entreat Divine mercy and blessing for the country.

MOTHER MAKES PITIFUL PLEA FOR BASKET

Pathetic Appeals for Assistance Arrive at Office of Boston American Xmas Fund

Many pitiful appeals for assistance from impoverished families have already begun to arrive at the office of the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund. They clearly indicate that the fund will be called upon to feed thousands more persons than at any time since it started eight years ago.

One of the most pathetic appeals for assistance came from a young Brighton mother, whose cup of sorrow seems to be filled to overflowing. Although but twenty-three years of age, she says she has three children and is about to become a mother again. She is forced through circumstances to work for a small wage in order to keep her children together and also states that her husband is now in prison.

Her letter follows:

"This is the first time I've written for a basket and I hope you will excuse me if I have written wrong. I am twenty-three years of age, and a mother of three children, and am expecting another child next March. My husband has refused to work for me and the children for the past two years. Last Christmas I had no dinner because I had to work and pay board for two children and myself. My husband is in prison and won't be out until some time in December. I only get nine dollars a week to live on, so it will be hard to get any kind of a dinner on Christmas. I trust you kind people will help me a little, if possible."

HUSBAND IS BLIND.

The wife of a South End blind man wrote the following, requesting for aid:

"As I have read of your helping in giving out food, I kindly ask if I may have a basket. My husband is blind and I am not working. My girl left her high school education to help us out. If you can help us out, we would be grateful and thankful. May the Lord bless you."

This is but two of many letters that have been received by the fund and gives the reader a fair idea of the destitution that will pervade many metropolitan homes at Christmas, unless the unfortunates who live in them are aided by the fund.

Additional praise of the work done by the fund comes from James A. Watson, familiarly known as "Jerry," president of the Boston City Council.

"I have come in personal contact with a few cases that have been by the American's Christmas Fund for several years," said Mr. Watson, "and I freely indorse it. I know of many families in Roxbury that have been given good dinners at Christmas by the Fund, and I also know that in nearly all of these instances the people receiving aid have practically nothing to eat unless they had been assisted.

MANY GET BASKETS.

"From personal observation I am convinced that great care is taken in placing food in the most needy families. That is one of the things I like about the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund. Every man or woman who has ever worked for a charitable or fraternal organization in distributing aid knows that there are a great many undeserving people who always apply for assistance.

"It takes good Judgment and discrimination to give assistance where it should be given. I know of the untiring efforts of some of the good men and women who assist in determining where the American's Christmas Fund food shall be placed.

"Another feature of the American Christmas Fund that strongly appeals to me is that unlike most charities, it spends one hundred cents of every dollar it collects, exclusively for food. That is a wonderful thing, and very few organizations can truthfully say that they do the same.

"The Boston American has always been a leader in public welfare work in this community. Its annual Christmas Basket Fund work is one of the best examples of this."

Many persons have planned to assist the Christmas Fund in various ways including Mrs. Elisabeth A. Stearns of Roxbury who materially aided the work for the past two years; James F. Gleason, Juvenile probation officer of the Juvenile Court, whose untiring efforts last season were much appreciated; Mrs. Helene Pescaglia of Somerville, Mrs. C. D. Williams of Adams Shore, Quincy, widely-known member of the Professional Women's Club; Alfred Shea of Roxbury; Mrs. Dora Horne of Dorchester; Miss Helen Hanlon of Beacon street; J. B. Brady of the Back Bay; Mrs. R. D. Foster, president of the Dorchester Women's Club; Mrs. Wesley Chandler of Dorchester. All these persons assisted last year and say they are glad to help again.

BRIAND PLEDGES FRENCH AID TO AVERT WARS

Premier Gives Message as He Lands at New York on Way to Parley

New York, Nov. 7.—France is ready to join in every endeavor to avert new wars, "provided she has nothing to fear for her own security, which remains one of the most solid guarantees of the peace of the world," said Premier Aristide Briand in a message to the American people upon his arrival today to attend the armament conference at Washington.

"Just because she had to suffer from the war more than any other nation," he added, "she is ready to approach the problems of the conference in the most favorable spirit for the maintenance of peace.

"WORLD NEEDS REALITIES."

"Between France and the United States of America there is no room for any difference, however slight. Both our countries only endeavor to lead the men and peoples of good will to peaceful and fruitful labor and to reduce more and more the risks of war.

"Today the world, which is in such need of safety and rest, wants not only sounding words, but realities."

A great crowd assembled at the dock and gave the Premier and his party a rousing welcome as they stepped ashore from the steamship Lafayette. Official welcoming ceremonies, which marked the arrival of other delegations to the conference were dispensed with to allow M. Briand to go to Washington at once.

Premier Briand, who said he would reserve formal comment on the conference until he had seen President Harding, comes to assist during the first twelve days of the conference in determining the principles upon which it will act. He comes without instructions, which subsequent details and results will treat. The French Senate and the Chamber of Deputies gave him a free hand.

He will enter the conference with general policies clear in his own mind and in the minds of other members of the delegation. These include:

CAN DISCUSS DEBTS.

First—The French government's obligations to the League of Nations do not preclude France from joining other powers inside or outside the League in limiting armaments or settling other questions that the league considers as within its jurisdiction.

Second—French policy is identical with that of the United States towards equal commercial opportunities in China.

Third—The restriction of sea armaments offers no difficulties peculiar to France. Her navy is already below an formula likely to be adopted.

Fourth—French interests concentrate upon land armaments. Their strength is conditioned by Germany said the payment or non-payment of reparations. German reparations and military questions are connected to be closely related to when and how France can begin to meet her American debt.

Therefore, if Washington desires to raise the question of the debts in the conference, the French delegation would be prepared to discuss them.

Heiress to $10,000,000, Who Feared Fortune Hunters, Comes Out

ALICE ANTOINETTE

New York, Nov. 7.—Ever since 1920, when the will of Joseph Raphael De Lamar left his daughter, Alice Antoinetto, heiress to a fortune of $10,000,000, Mrs. De Lamar has lived almost as a recluse, fearing the wiles of fortune hunters. Now she is coming out of her seclusion. Word to this effect was made public when it became known that the young woman, who is one of the richest in America, had leased for the opera season box 64 in the Metropolitan's famous "diamond horseshoe."

The view that the society butterfly is about to emerge from her cocoon is strengthened by the fact that her tickets call for her appearance at the opera on Monday night, when society is out in force and a blaze of jewelled glory.

CRAIG RENEWS DISCUSSIONS WITH PREMIER

Ulster Leader Summons Colleagues for Consultation on Irish Peace Terms

London, Nov. 7.—(By the Associated Press).—Further discussion of the plans devised by the government and the Sinn Fein for a settlement of the Irish problem was on the program of Prime Minister Lloyd George and Sir James Craig at the resumption of their consultations today, no decision or agreement having been reached at Saturday's meeting between the British Premier and the head of the Ulster cabinet.

The plans under consideration have to do with the question of fiscal autonomy proposed for the two legislatures in Ireland, in connection with which Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, the Secretary for War, both of whom are dealing with the financial side of the discussion, were present to take part in the discussion.

The Ulster Premier has summoned to London some of his colleagues, including Lord Londonderry, Ulster's most influential Unionist in English political circles, who is to arrive in London today.

The Sinn Fein does not believe that a result of the conference with its delegation can be taken before Wednesday. Michael Collins and George Gavan Duffy are expected to return tomorrow from Dublin, where they went over the week-end, and will be used for advice in dealing with the government representatives the following day.

The situation, it is indicated, has not been altered by their interview in Dublin with Eamon De Valera, the Sinn Fein president, having proceeded with their work in the conference, according to a well-defined plan.

They are waiting now to see how Lloyd George's proposals are submitted to him by Premier Lloyd George and declare that it is the government's business to secure his agreement before asking concessions from them.

feel equal to managing her affairs alone, from her sickbed, and that she wished he would drop everything and come home to her.

"He wrote back that nothing short of death would bring him home. This he wrote to his friend a few months. Is it any wonder that on his return he found her love had cooled? But still she took him in and supported him for a while.

"As to Cook's charges that Professor Greenfield, Cook's former Harvard classmate, and Mrs. Cook's first husband, visited at her house when Cook was in Europe—certainly, it is true. Professor Greenfield is the father of Mrs. Cook's son.

"Professor Greenfield is kept in Ireland in the Winter, by his duties at Trinity College, but in the summer, when he was free, what more natural than that the father should wish to look up his only son?

"What Cook has just done is the last phase of a desperate man. He claims his fellowship as an archeological student paid his way through Europe. That fellowship was $1,000 and it has not supported him since 1919, when he married Mrs. Cook.

"Mrs. Cook supported him till she got tired of it. It is hard for any real man, and any real friend of the lady, to understand how any decent man could have acted as Cook did, breaking into the house and then forcing open the bedroom door of his wife, who, prostrated, lay there, over eighty, and her housekeeper, were both on the other side, trying to hold it.

"And, being desperate, he forgets his better nature, forgets everything in his last despairing stand to keep what he wrote his wife was 'the most precious treasure that has ever come into my life.'"

the name of John Raney, forty-five years old.

Mrs. Colton, who lives at No. 25 Rochester street, was going with Miss Rubenstein to the latter's home at No. 20 Albion street. When they were within a few paces of the house Raney is said to have stepped from the shadows and seized them.

CHANGES HIS MIND.

Both girls cried for help. A passerby, a white man, started to come to their aid, but recoiled when he saw Raney's huge size, and finally turned and walked away, leaving them to their fate.

Raney, police say, seized Mrs. Colton by the throat. As he did so Miss Rubenstein came to her friend's help and struck him in the face.

He responded with a back-handed swing that knocked her down in a heap on the door-step of a dwelling house.

Mrs. Colton scratched and struck at him. Miss Rubenstein dragged herself to her feet and tried to aid her. The two were on the point of exhaustion when Patrolman Fitzpatrick arrived on the scene. As he came up Raney fled, but was soon caught.

TO BE ARRAIGNED TODAY.

Fitzpatrick took Raney to the East Dedham street station where he was held for appearance in court today. Miss Rubenstein was treated in her home for scratches and bruises resulting from the blow she had been struck.

Aside from the shock and minor hurts the victims were not seriously injured.

bow of the steamer cut through us to the keelson, or amidships.

Captain Asaph Crowell instantly backed off. If she had held her position, we could have all been aboard her in a few minutes. As it was, the schooner was hove down and in a few minutes was lying on its beam ends.

"Several of the crew were washed overboard. Mate Lancasson and two seamen were washed overboard. One succeeded in swimming back to the vessel. The other two swam to a piece of wreckage. They were later picked up by a boat from the Apache.

"Engineer Charles Swanson jumped into the rigging when the wreck came. When the ship hove down, he was washed out to sea and lost. I could hear him shouting for help, but we could do nothing to render assistance.

"The Apache took up a position one-eighth of a mile away and threw a searchlight upon it. For nearly five minutes after the crash, and no effort apparently made to rescue us.

APPEALED FOR HELP.

"A few minutes later one of the Apache's boats came along, and one of the men shouted: 'What schooner?' I told him, and they then turned around and went back to their ship. As they were leaving, I shouted: 'For God's sake, Fitzpatrick, are you going to leave us here to drown?' But he paid no attention. We all shouted, but they did not heed us. A half hour later the boat returned, but not within hearing distance of our fast-sinking schooner.

"Three hours after the collision we were picked up by the steamship Gloucester, which responded to our wireless calls. The Gloucester effort rescue and work under way in just 48 minutes, while in three hours the Apache had picked up but two men floating in the wreckage near our schooner, and had made no attempt to rescue us.

"Five minutes after we were taken aboard the Gloucester our schooner sank. If it hadn't been for the Gloucester, all of us would have lost our lives. Just as the Gloucester pulled away, the boat from the Apache returned a third time."

TALKS OF DIVORCE TANGLE

"She Paul may tell whoever she wishes that she is going to marry my husband—when she gets a divorce from her own husband—but by telling that she will not arouse me to any vituperative word or act.

"If Mrs. Paul were in my presence and told me herself she was about to marry Fred Crawford, all I would say would be, 'Good luck to you.'"

So Mrs Fred L. Crawford, in tones of dignity and forbearance, commented on the report, current through Watertown and Newton, that Mrs. Edward Paul, that Mrs. Paul, so soon as she is divorced from Paul, Watertown park commissioner, will marry Crawford, Newton garage man-undertaker.

DEFENDS HER HOME

Mrs. Crawford, widely respected throughout the Newtons, is part owner, with her husband, of the garage business near Newton Corner.

Now, just a few months ago, the first rumors that all was not well with the Crawfords and the Pauls spread among their friends. The two families had been fast friends. Mrs. Crawford in Newton and Mrs. Paul in Watertown had each been worthy matrons of their respective Eastern Star lodges.

The filing of divorce papers by Crawford and Mrs. Paul, followed shortly after the two women had retired from lodge offices.

In the petition Mrs. Crawford, according to her husband, had nagged him so that she had entirely deprived him of home life and comfort. Mrs. Crawford, with wifely dignity, showed her home to a visitor, as proof of the atmosphere she could create. It was quick, neat, clean, and, well ordered from garret to cellar.

"It really ill become me," said Mrs Crawford, "to speak out and tell of my wifely virtues.

"The papers have made a lot of the fact that I keep house along now when our joint home was in both and yet work in the Crawford garage by day.

WIFE PROTECTS BUSINESS.

"It is nobody's affair but my own. If work there because it is my business as well as his. A woman must protect her own these days. The money went into that garage. Therefore, I am still there, though Mrs. Crawford has brought that petition for divorce from me. As for discussing anybody who may or may not be going to marry my husband, all I can say is that I will not talk.

"I have always tried to do my duty by my husband, my home and myself. Whatever I may say of any woman will know—just let her ask herself. The worst of it is the cruel publicity—when feelings which should be hidden, are dragged into the light of day and made communism talk.

"In such crisis as I am living through, work is the only balm. Not my nothing against any of that tribe of idle misery who pain their faces and make themselves up to look ten years younger than they really are, and go abroad, thinking themselves mighty charmers, trying to get other people's husbands.

"Some day, I may have a great deal —and very illuminating remarks to make, on the whole topic. In the meantime I hazard this one comment, at suggestion of my counsel, Mr. Sullivan of Salem. If Mrs. Paul still married to Edward Paul; if Mr. Crawford, still in law my husband, plan to get married; if Mrs. Paul already tells that she is going to get married to my husband, then, all I say is 'good luck to her.' May she, may they both, have all the success they can expect."

BABY BITTEN BY DOG IS DEAD OF RABIES

Lawrence Child Was Among 14 Victims Slashed by Lawrence Canine

Lawrence, Nov. 7.—Bitten by a mad dog which ran wild through the streets of this city October 18, slashing fourteen persons, two-year-old Emily Zaremba of No. 261 Oak street died today of rabies.

The child was the first of the fourteen victims to die, and the fatality caused consternation among the thirteen survivors and their friends.

Leading physicians and surgeons are in attendance on these survivors.

As the death of little Emily was announced, the police were inaugurating a drive on unmuzzled dogs, which were to be captured and shot. The City Council recently issued an edict against canine strays and an order for their execution.

GIRL HEIR TO 50 MILLION ASKS FOR CASH

Daughter of Jacques Lebaudy Applies to Courts for $40,000

New York, Nov. 7.—Heiress to a fortune estimated as high as $50,000,000 and yet without sufficient means to spend for her proper education and support.

This is the plight of a "poor little rich girl" in real life—Jacqueline Lebaudy—just revealed by an application made to Surrogate Howell in Nassau County for a paltry $40,000 from her father's estate.

The sixteen-year-old daughter of the eccentric Jacques Lebaudy, self-styled "Emperor of the Sahara," who was slain on January 11, 1919, by his wife, Marie A. Lebaudy, in their home at Westbury, L. I., is one of the richest girls in the world.

But despite the vast fortune that rightfully belongs to her, Jacqueline has been unable to enjoy the comforts and luxuries to which a girl of her wealth would naturally be entitled.

For twenty months not a cent was collected from the estate by the widow. Seemingly endless litigation, extending from the courts of Nassau County to France, Chile, Bolivia, England, South Africa and many other points, have delayed settlement of the estate.

And because of the law's delay Jacqueline has found herself, not exactly improvished, but powerless to get possession of even a small part of the great fortune that is hers.

Today Surrogate Howell has under consideration the application of Mme. Lebaudy's attorneys that the co-administrators of the estate be cited to show cause why they should not pay her $40,000 for Jacqueline's education and support for a period of twenty months.

The courts originally authorized payment of $2,000 a month for the child's schooling and maintenance pending final settlement of the liquidation that has ensued since shortly after the eccentric French millionaire was slain by his wife in protecting her daughter.

In addition to the Surrogate Court Mme Lebaudy said she had not received any of the $2,000 payments since February, 1920. In the meantime she has spent her own money supporting and educating Jacqueline, until her funds are exhausted.

In spite of the fact that Mme Lebaudy possessed, mother and daughter would have found themselves in dire want, for the time being, but for friends. Jacqueline, only fourteen years old at the time of the murder, could not comprehend the situation. Even now she fails to fully understand why she is unable to get that which she knows belongs to her.

WOMAN KILLED BY BOY OF 16 YEARS

Worcester, Nov. 7.—Atlenists today were studying Allen Abrahams, sixteen years old, who, apparently hypnotized by the mere sight of a revolver, yesterday shot and killed Mrs. Mary Debs of No. 75 Norfolk street, while she was visiting his home, No. 100 Wall street.

The alienists sought to ascertain whether the boy was the mental defective he was pictured to be by his parents and friends.

Allen was making the bed for his uncle, Massod Nagan, while his father and Massod were talking to the woman in the kitchen of the Wall street house, when he came upon a revolver belonging to his uncle.

The sight of the gun appeared to fill him with a curious awe and he was seen fondling it almost lovingly. Suddenly he took aim at Mrs. Debs and fired. Then he ran from the house. Mrs. Debs was dead when she was picked up and taken to the City Hospital.

Allen probably will not be arraigned until the January term.

KEYS PAID WIFE $10,000 FOR HIS FREEDOM

Health Failing, He Assented to Annulment to Secure Release From Her Claims

It cost John Baker (Romeo) Keys $11,000 for his freedom from Florence Girardin, former Harvard Club elevator girl.

This sum included $10,000 to the young woman and $1,000 counsel fee to her attorney, John W. Vaughan, but does not include the court costs or the fee to Keys' own attorney, Damen E. Hall.

With the announcement of the terms of settlement of Baker (Keys) and his young wife there came to light the reasons why the aged rich man wanted the marriage annulled, and was willing to have the annulment granted on the grounds that he was insane at the time of the ceremony.

Keys is 65 years old and is ill. He recently underwent an operation for the removal or a growth in his neck, and, it is said, fears that he cannot live more than a few months.

He felt, it was explained by those in a position to voice opinions, that even if his charges of infidelity brought against his former wife were sustained, and he was granted a decree nisi, that it would be at least six months before that decree would become final, and that he might die before this, when the young woman would share legally in the estate valued at more than half a million dollars.

By having the marriage annulled on the ground of insanity this dilemma was avoided and the former Mrs. Baker (Keys) forfeited all claim to the estate elapsed.

With this idea in mind, the attorneys on both sides got together and decided that $10,000 was the proper sum to be paid the young woman.

12 ARE DRIVEN TO STREET BY LYNN FIRE

The firemen found Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Finkle and five children, and Mr. and Mrs. John Ferrin and their three children huddled together in the entrance of the house. They assisted them from the building to the home of a neighbor where they were cared for.

Fire damage was estimated at approximately $1300. An investigation was made today by state police as to the cause of the blaze. It was believed by the police that the flames were caused by an overheated chimney.

TRIAL OF FRENCH 'BLUEBEARD' IS OPENED

Henri Landru Charged With Slaying a Dozen "Wives" and Fiancees for Money

By International News Service.

Versailles, France, Nov. 7.—France's most sensational murder trial since the acquittal of the wife of former Premier Joseph Caillaux of a murder charge in the Summer of 1914, opened today, when Henri Landru, "Modern Bluebeard", was arraigned charged with killing a dozen "wives" and fiancees for their money.

A tremendous crowd, composed mainly of women, stormed the court building, but were held back by a cordon of fifty policemen that guarded the entrance. Admission was by ticket only. Landru was taken into the courtroom by a secret passage. He was calm and seemed amused at the excitement his case had aroused. As he sat in the dock and glanced about the crowded courtroom, he smiled occasionally.

Unexpected speed was made in securing a jury. The full jury was sworn in at 10:30 o'clock and the court immediately began reading the indictment.

The first sensation came when it was learned that the police have discovered a woman named Desiree Guilin, whose name and age are the same as that of 'Landru's fourth "fiancee." The prosecution had alleged at the preliminary hearings that she met Landru in June, 1915, and lived with him at his villa at Vernouillet until the following August, when she disappeared.

ONE VICTIM FOUND.

It was assumed by the prosecution that she had been killed. It is now reported that the woman was found working as a governess in a wealthy Paris family. She has been questioned by the police and admitted answering Landru's matrimonial advertisement in May, 1915, but denies that she ever met him.

Despite her story, the answers exactly the description of the missing "fiancee," even to sixteen false teeth in her mouth, the same town as the missing woman, and admitted that she lived in the same house at Paris as the missing woman.

Landru's counsel said that the discovery was news to him, despite rumors that he had planned to produce one of the missing women at the trial.

Immediately after Judge Gilbert, president of the Assize Court, clad in his black robes, had mounted the bench and took his seat alongside his fellow justices, court was called to order. There was no delay in the examination of the prospective jurors. The trial took on the appearance of a society event with large numbers of richly gowned women from Paris. The latter seemed more anxious to see Landru than to hear the formal interrogations.

CROWD BURIED.

There were about 400 persons in the courtroom including witnesses, jurors, newspapermen and spectators. Every eye was turned upon Landru. The prisoner bore up smiling and composed, under the scrutiny. Landru sat at the left of the Judge's bench and directly opposite the famous "Bluebeard" relatives in France.

Several women dressed in black, relatives of some of the alleged victims, kissed when Landru entered the court room, Landru disregarded them, but smiled brightly at the smartly gowned women who filled the spectators' gallery.

The prisoner stood while he gave his pedigree. His smoke in a voice scarcely above a whisper.

The story is mixed, containing three workmen.

Landru was alleged to have burned the corpses of some of his alleged victims in his villa at Gambat. He contends, however, that the ashes found there were from pork bones which he burned in his furnace. He has stated that he cannot reveal the whereabouts of some of the missing women because he is pledged to secrecy.

LODGE WANTS 'REAL' BONUS, NOT PROMISE

Agreement to Use Foreign Debt Interest "Giving Practically Nothing"

Washington, Nov. 7.—In urging his amendment to the tax bill to provide for a soldiers' bonus, Senator Simmons in the Senate today said he believed it was the intension of President Harding to pay a bonus out of the interest of the foreign debt. This view also was taken by Senator McCumber of North Dakota, one of those in charge of the tax bill.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the Republican leader, took the position that the bonus should not be contingent upon so uncertain a proposition.

"Whenever we pay the bonus, as we are going to shall," said Senator Lodge, "I want the payment to be a real payment. The proposition, under the pretence of giving a bonus, gives only an uncertainty.

"No one can tell when we will begin to get the interest on the credits given to the foreign countries. We are not going to use force to collect it.

"The promise that we will provide the bonus from this interest is practically giving the soldiers nothing."

RUSSIAN SONG BIRD WHO ACCUSED BAKLANOFF

MLLE. ELVIRA AMAZAR.

She accused a Russian baritone and he was in danger of being deported, but it is now thought that she has decided to cease playing the role of the "woman scorned."

'LITTLE DEVIL OF OPERA' TO DROP CHARGES

Elvira Amazar Reported to Have Decided Georges Baklanoff Isn't Guilty

Did Mlle. Elvira Amazar, beautiful Russian opera singer, come to America to sing with the Boston Opera Company, or was she brought here for illegal purposes by the great Russian baritone, Georges Baklanoff?

More than a year ago the vivacious and petite diva startled the operatic world by charging that the great baritone had brought her to America together she suddenly discovered that he had a wife and two children living in Russia.

She charged that he had blacked her eyes and had done other various things that were entirely objectionable to her.

Baklanoff was with the Chicago Grand Opera Company when the charges were made and chaos reigned for a time. Mlle. Amazar failed to scorn the handsome Russian singer, but when he appeared with the opera company Chicago clergymen protested, and the path of the baritone was not a rosy one.

As a result of the charges, deportation proceedings were started against Baklanoff. The charges are still pending. With the proverbial fury of the "woman scorned," the beautiful diva sought revenge and the tongues in operatic and musical circles wagged furiously. Baklanoff was in disgrace.

Now with the return to Chicago of Baklanoff comes the report that Mlle. Amazar has repudiated the charges, and that Baklanoff is again restored to repute with the Chicago Grand Opera Company. He is to appear with the company again this year, and it is believed in Chicago that the deportation charges will be dropped.

It was in 1915 that the beautiful Mlle. Amazar arrived at Boston prematurely to sing with the Boston Opera Company. She was then given the title of "The Little Devil of Grand Opera." She announced at the time of her arrival that she was going to teach Boston women to flirt and dress. She stated that Boston women were too cold, too haughty, too statuesque.

Now comes the report that she had decided her charges against Baklanoff untrue. She is reported to have said that she came to America solely for some time, and the statement that she has repudiated her charges against the great baritone comes from Baklanoff's counsel.

While it is expected that the charges will be dropped, the operatic world is still wondering just what the diva did come to America for.

INDUSTRIALIST AID OFFERED GERMANY

Conditions Call for Economy and Would End Obligatory Eight-Hour Day

Berlind Nov. 7. (By Associated Press)—The League of German Industrialists has voted to come to the financial aid of the government by placing at its disposal the foreign credits of the league's members, which it is estimated will yield 1,000,000,000 marks.

A resolution to this effect was adopted after seven hours of stormy debate which was participated in by Hugo Stinnes, the Bruncler, and Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, director of the Krupp Works.

The resolution sets forth the following conditions:

Addition by the government of a program of rigid economy and consultation with private enterprise in the formulating the economic and tax program.

Dedication of the government's willingness to call upon foreign financial experts for advice in regard to the amount of credit to be floated, and its relation to the prevailing fluctuations of the foreign exchange.

Enterprises in the hands of the State and public utilities are to be managed in such a manner that they cease to be a drain upon the national treasury.

Freedom of the country's economic life from every restriction that hinders its development. In this category the league places the eight-hour day.

The meeting was attended by 1,200 representatives of big business concerns. Hugo Stinnes, president of the Reichsbank, participated in the debate on the resolution, urging the delegates to support the credit scheme.

Financial writers express the opinion that the government will be unable to agree to the stipulated conditions.

Norwaerts says: "This is the first instance in modern history of taxpayers arrogating to themselves the prerogative of dictating to the State conditions under which they are willing to come to its aid."

ROXBURY DRUG STORE LICENSE REVOKED

Ordered From Washington Following Arrest of Owners for Violation of Dry Law

Elmer C. Potter, Federal prohibitionidirector for Massachusetts, announced today that the liquor permit of the Francis Drug Company, No. 735 Huntington avenue, Roxbury, had been revoked.

The order for the cancellation, according to Potter, came from Federal Prohibition Director Haynes at Washington. It follows revokation proceedings that were started after the arrest of Joseph J. Coughlin, head of the drug company, and his brother George, on the charge of violating the prohibition laws.

Following the arrest of the two Coughlins, Federal prohibition agents searched the store of the drug company and reported that they found 144 bottles of liquor in the store. This was seized.

The two men were before United States Commissioner Hayes and the charges were dismissed and the liquor ordered returned to the company. Director Potter refused to return the liquor and court action followed.

Judge Morton decided in favor of the drug company and in ordering Potter to return the liquor state he did not "think the mere fact of an illegal sale on the drug company's premises sufficient to warrant finding that the stock of liquor being held for illegal purposes.

More than seven thousand garments of best quality medium weight Glove Silk Underwear made by a manufacturer of recognized high standard

The reason for the low prices is this:

This manufacturer (the largest producer of glove silk underwear in the world) found that he could effect great economies by concentrating on five styles of garments. Regularly he makes many styles. He was anxious to keep his factory going and he applied his entire force to "standard production" for limited periods. There was no relaxation of standards, simply "quantity production."

The Boston branch of the Women's Peace Society, at a meeting held at the home of the chairman, Mrs. M. H. L. Proehl, No. 74 Commonwealth avenue, Chestnut Hill, adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas, Chinese territorial integrity is the crux of the Pacific situation, and whereas, there cannot be any lasting peace in the Pacific without allowing China full independence by abolition of the 'spheres of influence,' be it resolved that America at the coming Washington conference on disarmament adopt the policy of complete abolition of the 'spheres of influence' in China as a condition of the existing rivalry of nations.

"And be it resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the President of the United States, Senators Lodge, Root, Borah and Underwood, Secretary Hughes and to the delegates to the conference on disarmament."

BIG BOOK TITLE PICTURE TEST OPENS TODAY

Here is a newspaper "story" designed to call your attention to a delightful entertainment which, at the end, may add one thousand dollars to your bank account.

Shortly after the New Year the Boston American is going to present one of its readers with one thousand dollars. To another, we will pay seven hundred and fifty dollars. To a third, five hundred dollars.

Who are these readers? Where do they live? How old are they? What do they do for a living?

These questions we cannot answer. They will be determined by results. The answers are in the hands and brains of Boston American readers.

TO-DAY OR DAYS.

On this page is drawing No. 1 in the Boston American's $6,000 Book Title Picture Test. Can you tell which of the one hundred titles printed below is the CORRECT title?

There are fifty-nine similar problems to come, one every day for sixty days. Can you answer every one correctly? If you can, you may consider yourself richer to the amount of the First Award.

A Book Title Test, in which you seek to determine what title each picture represents. Sixty days. Sixty pictures, and at the end the payment by the Boston American, in cash, of two hundred and nineteen awards.

FIRST AWARD	$1,000
SECOND AWARD	750
THIRD AWARD	500
FOURTH AWARD	250
FIFTH AWARD	100
SIXTH AWARD	75
SEVENTH AWARD	50
EIGHTH AWARD	25
100 AWARDS OF $10 EACH	1,000
100 AWARDS OF $5 EACH	500
Total	$3,000

TELL OWN STORY.

In many respects the Book Test is similar in form to the Movie Play Title Test and the Songs of the World Title Test, both recently conducted by this newspaper with great success. In other respects it will prove to be different. For one thing, you will observe an almost complete absence of text from the pictures.

There will be little or no "talking" in the drawings. Each drawing will tell its own story. The artist aims to picture the title without words. Some participants in previous tests, from the language in the pictures a handicap. They found it difficult to determine whether to choose a title suggested by the picture alone or by what the people in it were saying.

Only three of the first fifty pictures in the Book Test have any text whatever and these three only use a word apiece. The artist has outdone himself. The originals of some of these drawings would not be out of place in an expensive book.

MEANS HARD WORK.

On second thought, it may be that the use of the words "present" or "gift" in connection with this test is ill-advised. As a matter of fact, those who take active part in this Book Test will have to work for them. By this we do not mean that they will have to engage in some scheme for the Boston American, but rather, that they will have to work hard for themselves. It will not always be the easiest thing in the world to pounce upon THE correct title. We have discovered in the previous tests that even the most commonplace words have various meanings.

Here is splendid entertainment, this Book Test, for autumn and early December evenings. For the night when you do not care to go out, even to the movies. For the time in the evening when the supper things are cleared away, mother can sit down with her boys and girls and join in the fun. In the recent tests among the substantial winners in one of the seven tests was a married woman of middle age who submitted that her most difficult Test problem had been solved by her mother, a woman in her sixties.

The title of the first picture—and this is the only fact that any prospective title will be made during the test—will be published something you will need all through the Test. It is the decision as well that it was deemed worthy of the name of "picture."

CLEAR FIELD, NO FAVORITES.

Anybody, anywhere, may take part in this new Test and earn one of its awards. The Boston American is circulated everywhere in New England and has a regular communication across the Canadian line. The reader in Quebec city as important and necessary to the success of the test as any other reader. If a reader in Montreal or Sherbrooke, Providence or Worcester or Lowell should qualify for the first award he or she will be handed the title check as promptly as if it were address were Dorchester, Cambridge or South Boston. And vice versa. A clear field and no favorites!

It is permitted to receive help on these problems? Of course if you have a friend who can help you to the correct title, of course you will ask that friend's assistance. You may, however, be pestered by some fakir offering to sell a list of possible answers. Note the word "possible." Only one title can be correct. If you get the fakir's list it will only confuse you. Your own list—the list you get together—will fill a list of "possible" answers. In the recent Song Title Test there were at least two such propositions offered. Most of them turned up with fewer than thirty-five titles out of the possible sixty. The other twenty-five!

RECENT AWARD WINNERS.

Does the Boston American really distribute such generous awards among its readers? No one reader may ask that question. Check up on them for yourself.

The best answer is a list of names and addresses, omitting the records of previous year, and omitting more than four hundred awards of $10 and less, the list is as follows:

In the Movie Play Title Test: $1,000, William E. Murphy, 15 No. 368 Columbia street, Cambridge; $750, Miss M. Wood, No. 24 Vine street, Dorchester Centre; $500, William A. Ingalls, No. 1 Lamartine square, Jamaica Plain; $400, Bernard F. Doris, No. 21 Sea View avenue, Malden; $300, Louis J. Feyser, No. 19 Fairmount street, Dorchester; $200, Clarence Mc-

Kay, No. 171 Westminster street, Providence; $150, W. M. Spline, No. 5 Dickerman Lane, Braintree; $100, Mrs. H. W. Leighton, No. 66 Madison street, Hanover; $50, Frank O. Curtis, No. 47 Centre road, Quincy. Mr. Murphy sent in thirty-three correct titles. Mr. Curtis, fifty.

In the Song Title Test: $1,000, Miss Mary A. Cullahan, No. 9 Green street, Newbury, and Mrs. A. M. Spaulding, No. 78 Myrtle street, Greenwood; $750, Albert W. Thayer, No. 218 West Selden street, Mattapan; $500, Henry H. Dorrance, No. 17 Cleveland street, Lynn; $400, Miss Frances Hickey, No. 11 Knapp street, Somerville; $300, William F. Bonner, No. 72 Orchard street, Medford Hillside; $200, Thomas F. Gilligan, No. 242 Orne street, Providence; $150, Mrs. Blanche A. Cosden, No. 248 Massachusetts avenue, Boston; $100, Clifton T. Rhoades, Pleasant street, Bridgewater; $50, Miss Edith F. Boone, Ontario Hospital, Whitby, Ont.

WORDS HAVE MEANING.

In the files of this newspaper there are letters of thanks and appreciation from those ladies and gentlemen.

While we have not asked them, we feel sure that any of them will testify to the excellence and fairness of Boston American contests if we ask them and are careful to enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

It remains to be said that title tests are not for everybody, though they are wide open to all. They are not "guessing contests." They are not decided by "luck and chance." The Test Editor cannot guarantee that the awards will go to those who need them the most. You must be willing and mentally equipped to investigate the meaning of the words you will see from day today in the List of Titles.

The List of Titles, to say it another way, is as much a part of the Test as the Test Drawing. If the title of any picture isn't "as plain as the nose on your face"—like today's, for example—you should consider the List of Titles carefully, even to the extent of looking up the meaning of words.

GET PAPER REGULARLY.

Think you want to take part? Feel that you are as well equipped for the sixty-day search as the next reader? Come on in, and good luck to you!

But remember this:

You MUST have the Boston American every day in order to follow the Test from start to finish. There ARE other ways. If you like, you may make copies of the drawings and titles each day instead of pictures clipped from the paper. The better way will be to get the paper regularly.

In this age of business and efficiency, newsdealers no longer load up with newspapers in the "good old way." The average dealer limits his order of any newspaper to the known demand for that paper. Dealers everywhere carry large numbers of Boston Americans but if you are only a once-in-awhile customer you know how it is when you drop around after everybody else has been served. It's like being late to a turkey dinner.

Tell your dealer NOW that you intended to take part in the $5,000 Book Title Test and will expect him to supply you regularly with the Boston American. Please do not write to this office asking for back numbers. We do not have them. The Boston American is not in competition with the newsdealer and does not want to be. Leave a standing order for the paper and you need not worry.

READ RULES OF TEST.

Being a sensible person, you naturally will read the Rules of the Test. The only rule that need be mentioned in this place to day is that which admonishes you to SEND IN NOTHING BEFORE THE END OF THE TEST. Pictures and Titles are not to be sent in from day to day. Hold them until Picture No. 60 has been printed. Send them in, all together, at one time.

You will want to refer to Lists of Titles from time to time in connection with the pictures printed with them. For that reason it will be advisable to give each List of Titles a number. Mark today's List of Titles, for example, No. 1.

Book Test Picture No. 2 will be printed tomorrow. You may not see it unless you make sure of the paper in advance.

RULES OF THE BOOK TITLE CONTEST

The Boston American Book Title Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by this newspaper to its readers who submit the largest percentage of correct titles to the sixty pictures to be published one each day for sixty days consecutively (Sundays excepted) in the Boston American.

The conditions of the Boston American and this contest are absolutely barred from participation in the awards.

In the event of a tie between sixty pictures, each of two or more tying contestants will be awarded a full award. In the event of a tie between fifty pictures, each of two or more tying contestants will be awarded the next highest award. In the event of a tie between forty pictures, each of two or more tying contestants will be awarded the next highest award, and so on down the line.

Each and every title must be neatly written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American, or on a plain piece of paper of approximately the same size as the coupon furnished by the Boston American, or a plain or ruled piece of letter paper, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, that is, do not write titles one under another so as to piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the nearest subscribers who have submitted the highest number of correct titles.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of the earliest postmark on the envelope containing the winning set of titles.

Letters or communications should not be sent in their titles before the end of the Test. Titles received before the Test is completed will not be considered, and must have been received from day to day and at the end of the Test arranged in order to picture numbers and sent them in all together at one time.

There will be no delay in making the awards. The first titles sent in after the Test closes will be the first awards that will be announced.

Only titles must be delivered to the Boston American office in competition. No. 20 Summer street, Boston 9, Mass., either by mail or in person. Titles sent to any other address will not be considered. Titles received by mail should be addressed as follows: "Book Title Test, Boston American, Boston, Mass." Or, if in person, "Book Title Test, Boston American, 20 Summer street, Boston 9, Mass." Titles received by mail should be sent in a sealed envelope, with no other communication enclosed.

Titles sent in by contestants must contain writers or printed matter, if mailed in a separate envelope, or they will be returned to the senders at postage rates, as unfit for this character of mail matter. The Boston American reserves the right to reject any contestant or any titles which, in its judgment, are not in accordance with the conditions of the contest.

Titles will be on file at the office of the Boston American, but will not be returned to contestants. Duplicate titles may be sent in, or additions to those once sent in, if desired.

The Boston American reserves the right to make such decisions as it may deem necessary in the case of duplicate titles, and such decisions shall be final and binding upon all contestants. Any question not specifically covered by these rules will be decided by the Boston American, and its decision in such matters will be final and binding upon all contestants. Any error will be corrected if it is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

GOODWIN RAPS LENIENCY IN AUTO CASES

"Nobody's Life Is Now Safe on the Highways," He Declares

In a statement declaring that "nobody's life is now safe on the highways" State Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today scored the courts for their failure to impose jail sentences upon reckless and drunken auto drivers.

Goodwin made his attack upon the leniency of the courts after reading the Sunday auto-accident list in today's papers.

Referring to the case of John H. McTiernan of No. 31 High street, and Albert M. Agan of No. 846 Hale street, Beverly Farms, arrested in Swampscott on the charge of drunkenness after an accident, following which their car was abandoned, Goodwin said, "It is a typical case of where a man is let off easy by the courts."

Three people were run down and injured while waiting for a trolley car. McTiernan and Agan were caught after a chase by a crowd. Both are said to have denied driving the car.

Goodwin said today that McTiernan's license was revoked on August 4, after he had been convicted in Salem Court of operating while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $25.

McTiernan then transferred his car to his sister, Mary B. McTiernan of No. 31 High street, Beverly Farms, and the car was registered in her name on August 16. Agan is not registered in this State.

"This is a good illustration of the failure of the courts to mete out proper punishment to men operating while under the influence of liquor," said Goodwin.

"When this man was convicted he was fined $25. If he had been given a jail sentence, he would have been careful that any car in which he rode in the future would not be operated in a manner to endanger the lives and safety of the public.

"The casualty list in today's papers again shows the need of more drastic action by the police and the courts, especially in cases in which motorists operate at a reckless speed or after drinking hootch."

OWNER AGREES TO CLOSE DUDLEY STREET SALOON

A complaint was made in the Roxbury Court today that Michael Raleigh had not closed his near-beer saloon at No. 329 Dudley street, as he had promised last month. Raleigh replied that it was his intention to close the establishment today and his case was continued to Nov. 16. Raleigh was charged with keeping a liquor nuisance.

HAPGOOD VIEWS OPEN FINANCE WITH FAVOR

Writer Lauds Move for "Visible and Responsible" Leadership in National Matters

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American

Washington, Nov. 7.—Beginning in a few days news of the conference will swamp everything. I look forward with pleasure to handling news of this big event, but at the same time it is with a little touch of regret that I give up for the time talking about a wide variety of intellectual interests.

Feeling this way, I said to myself: "There are only two or three more days left before I am immersed in the conference and its daily events. Meantime here are a dozen or two dozen developments of all sorts, noted on my desk, waiting to be talked about.

"Here is Judge Anderson of Indiana bringing back government by injunction into industrial disputes. Here is the real result in North Dakota becoming clear, with its prospects. Here is a letter from Russia, with interesting private information.

"Here is a railroad point. There are developments in relation to political prisoners. Ghandi, reuts, a score of inviting subjects, from which one must be chosen. Which?"

OPINION ON GOVERNMENT.

Well, from the lot I choose an expression of public opinion about our form of government, and whether it needs to be changed in order really to express the underlying will of the people.

The National Economic League is made up of people who think about this subject. They have just been consulted on various aspects of it. The first question is whether we should have "open, visible, and responsible leadership in matters of national finance and administration."

At present our Legislature is managed by a bunch of secret committees whose chairmen are the real framers of legislation and whom the public cannot follow or call to account. The vote was twenty-three for the present system and 984 against, showing a fair majority among thinking men.

Then comes the question of the remedy. The question is asked, whether there should be a budget prepared under the direction of the President and publicly explained and defended on the floor of Congress by the particular members of the cabinet who are in charge of the particular subject.

VOTE FOR CHANGE.

On this question thirty-seven vote in the negative and 979 voted for the change. This is an entirely different change from the one made by the new budget law, which may cause minor economies but is not at all a step toward open, responsible government.

This change could be made by a mere change in the rules of Congress. As such a change, however, would take away safety and power from the old codgers who have gotten the secret power under the present system of seniority there is small change that Congress would take such a step willingly.

Then the question is asked, supposing Congress refuses to act, should there be a constitutional amendment to make the change? Here the vote is closer. Two hundred and twenty-five vote no, while 149 vote in favor of the constitutional amendment.

Suppose this system were started and there should be a deadlock? Ought the two branches to remain deadlocked, or should the country decide? Should there be a referendum, an election?

Here we get also a somewhat closer vote, naturally, as the change is fundamental. Those who vote against the change are 502, and those who vote for it are 628.

ALMOST UNANIMOUS.

In other words the vote to have the change brought about by the intelligence of Congress is almost unanimous. The vote to force an amendment is overwhelming, but not nearly as close to unanimity.

The vote that our present system of voting at fixed periods on a whole mass of confused subjects, with no definite issues, should be abandoned in favor of having elections on specific issues as they arise between the President and Congress is at the ratio of somewhat more than five to four.

Political habits change slowly. Perhaps it is just as well. This vote shows, however, that in the intelligent, thinking groups there is much dissatisfaction with a system in which the public gets no real information and in which elections do not clearly decide anything.

BOSTON MOTORIST IS FINED $75 IN LYNN

John F. Monagle of East Canton street, Boston, was fined $75 by Judge Reeve in the Lynn Court today, when he was found guilty of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. According to the police Monagle was accompanied by a woman named Edith Donovan of Rutland square, Boston. She was charged with drunkenness, and was released before court.

YEAR IN JAIL AFTER FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT

William Leo Collins of Woburn, convicted of driving an automobile in a manner that endangered the public, was sentenced to a year in jail by Judge Brown in Superior Court at East Cambridge today when his case came on on appeal. In the lower court the sentence was fifteen months. Collins was driving a car which figured in a fatal accident in Newtonville last March.

CURLEY PROMISES CAR SERVICE FOR NEPONSET

The forcing of the Boston Elevated to run a street car line through Minot street, from Adams street to Neponset avenue, was promised, in the event of his election, by former Mayor James M. Curley, in a noonday rally held today at the Hallet & Davis piano works, Neponset. Curley arraigned the present city administration and declared that he believed if it had been alive to its wants the Neponset River today would be dredged to a depth of twenty feet at mean low water, from the Ship Channel to Milton, thus aiding industry and commerce.

FUNDS FOR HEATING FANEUIL HALL ASKED

Steps to heat Faneuil Hall during the Winter were taken today by Mayor Peters, when he sent to the City Council an order asking for the transfer from the general reserve fund to the Public Buildings Department, the sum if $50,000 to pay for laying pipes in the hall and in the India Building, No. 8 State street, there to be connected with the heating plant separately Cabot, Cabot & Forbes. The Mayor also asked the Council to appropriate $1,500 to pay for the heating of the hall for the rest of the year.

TWO ARE HELD AFTER CAR INJURES THREE

Albert M. Agan, chauffeur for former United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge, and John F. McTiernan, both of Beverly, were held in $2,000 each for a hearing next Monday when they appeared in the Lynn Court today charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and with failure to stop after a collision. They pleaded not guilty. They were arrested Sunday night after a car crashed into three persons near the Swampscott Club. It is alleged that the two men fled leaving their car. Members of the Swampscott Club who witnessed the accident gave chase and held them until the police arrived. Mrs. Ella Sargent of Newhall street, Lynn, one of the three injured, is suffering from a fractured skull.

Happily Ever After

The engagement ring is the symbol of the love stories of all ages. It brings forth visions of the betrothed couples in history and fiction who have been happy. The girl who wears it feels that she and the man who placed it on her finger have pledged themselves like those others to live happily ever after.

And so it follows that the ring itself must be worthy of all for which it stands. The design must be good and one which will remain good in the happy years to come. The stone should be well-cut, of good color, and carefully mounted. Even though the ring must be reasonable in price it is possible to fulfil these requirements.

We have been diamond merchants for one hundred and twenty-one years. We "know" diamonds as only the experience of generations can teach. Every week rings come back to us for cleaning or repairing from some of those who long ago bought from us the symbol of their happiness. May we show you the rings we have, or design a setting especially for you?

40 GUESTS FLEE FIRE AT WORCESTER HOTEL

Worcester, Nov. 7.—Fifty guests were driven to the street when flames swept the four-story Hotel Berwick at Nos. 227-231 Front street, from basement to garret, causing a loss estimated at $50,000. Several of the guests rooming on the top floor barely had time to escape in their night clothes.

The flames, discovered in a restaurant on the first floor by William Metis, night clerk in the hotel, spread with amazing rapidity, and by the time the firemen had arrived the building was doomed.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON THE DOINGS OF SOCIETY

Fashionable Folk of Boston Are Supporting Veterans' Theatre Benefit

By BETTY ALDEN

As the season progresses one hears at increasingly frequent intervals of some entertainment being given under the auspices of Boston's Community Service to add to its fund for sick and disabled veterans of the late war.

On November 22 a big theatrical benefit performance will be held at the Colonial Theatre, in which the military, social and theatrical contingent of Boston is interesting itself. There is no reason why the affair should not be a distinct success, as prominent women are on the committee, well-known managers are arranging for stage stars to appear in its attractive debutantes have volunteered to act as ushers and a large number of socially prominent matrons have been enrolled as patronesses.

Many tickets for the orchestra and boxes have already been engaged, and several women are planning to entertain some of the more seriously disabled soldiers at box parties that afternoon. Among the patronesses is Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge, who devotes more than a little of her time to worthy charity projects, as well as the Mmes. Francis R. Crowninshield, Russell Codman, George Lee, E. Parker Brewer, Leverett Tuckerman, 2nd, Oliver Ames, Jr., Henry Cabot, Amory A. Lawrence, John Silsbee Curtis, John E. Thayer, Alvin Fuller, Theodore Burgess, E. Farnham Greene, William L. Parker, the Misses Rose Dexter, Cornelia Bowditch, Dorothy Forbes, Mary Bartlett, also Governor and Mrs. Channing Cox and Mayor and Mrs. Andrew Peters.

Tickets may be obtained at the Army and Navy Club, No. 10 Park square, the Colonial Theatre and Herrick's ticket agency.

To judge by indications, society is planning to make the most of the two weeks which the San Carlo Opera Company will spend in Boston. I rather think that a goodly number of ever-busy charity workers are looking forward to these two weeks as a decidedly pleasant diversion, for the many bazaars and charity functions of all sorts which have been planned by society for this month and the next are beginning to run into appallingly large figures.

At any rate the opera will have society's hearty support during its fortnight's stay. Many of the fashionables have already subscribed for boxes, and it is expected that the Opera House in the Back Bay will, for the time being, assume the splendor and style of which it boasted in the days when Boston had an opera company of its own.

Among those who are responsible for the coming of the San Carlo opera are the Henry S. Grews, the Richmond Fearings, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burlingame, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Goodrick and Courtenay Guild. Among the leading subscribers are Mr. and Mrs. R. Porter Bremer, Dr. and Mrs. William Norton Bullard, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cabot, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Forbes, the H. S. Hunnewells, Mrs. Hall McAllister, Mr. and Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Jr., Mrs. F. J. Mixter, Marchese di Feranzo, Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears, Mrs. George H. Monks, Governor Channing Cox, Isidore Braggiotti and Grafton Cushing.

That Catherine Pollard, daughter of Mrs. A. Wilder Pollard of Commonwealth avenue, was a sincerely enthusiastic worker at Dr. Grenfell's mission in Labrador is not to be doubted when one learns that Miss Pollard has left for St. Anthony's, Newfoundland, where she will have charge of the industrial work at Dr. Grenfell's mission in the absence of Mrs. Blackburn, the superintendent, who goes to England with her husband and little girl in time for the Christmas holidays.

When Miss Pollard returned last June after a stay of several months at the mission, she joined her family at the Pollard Summer place on Eastern Point, Gloucester. Even after devoting so much of her time to the mission during the preceding months, Miss Pollard could not think of spending her Summer months "off duty" without doing something to help the earnest group of workers in Labrador. So, when the big Army and Navy Festival was held in July at Pingree field, Wenham, she was put in charge of the booth, together with Faith Stanwood, a fellow-worker and friend of Miss Pollard's at the Grenfell mission, at which articles were sold which had been made at the mission. Then, in July, Miss Pollard was the leading spirit of the large ball held at the Hawthorne Inn, Gloucester, for the benefit of the mission.

Another Bostonian who has gone to assist at the mission is Joseph H. Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods of Chestnut street, who is to instruct the younger children at the morning session, train the Boy Scouts in the afternoon and teach in the evening school.

MURPHY RAPS EX-MAYOR'S REGIME

"Welfare of City, Curley's Last Thought," He Tells Fidelia Hall Gathering

John R. Murphy and James M. Curley attacked each other's career in addresses delivered before the Germantown Civic Association in Fidelia Hall. Charles S. O'Connor also spoke.

Murphy attacked the policies of Curley while mayor, and especially alleged defective fire apparatus which had been purchased during the Curley administration.

"This," he said, "was only a sample of the general policy of the Curley administration.

"The real welfare of the city and the people of Boston was the last thing thought of under the Curley regime," Murphy declared.

Curley said Murphy's candidacy "resembles the old '49 movement. Lured by the prospect of virgin gold for the first time since they sold out the people in the Boston Elevated Company steal, every discredited member and former member of the State Legislature flocking to the Murphy 'gold standard.'"

NEWTON MAN ENDS LIFE IN HOTEL

James W. Leach, Missing Two Days, Commits Suicide in Haverhill

A man who registered as "A. J. Jarvis, Boston," but who was identified from papers in his clothing by the police as James W. Leach, No. 152 Harvard street, Newtonville, ended his life by shooting himself through the head in the Hotel Nichols, Haverhill.

The reason for his act is a mystery. A report of suicide was made by Medical Examiner Anthony after examination of the body. A thirty-two-calibre automatic pistol was the weapon used by the suicide.

Leach arrived at the hotel shortly after noon and went at once to the room which he engaged. He was alone and carried no baggage.

DOOR IS FORCED.

Several hours later a chambermaid who had no response to her knocking on the door called the hotel manager and the door to Leach's room was forced. He was found lying across the bed with the bullet wound in his head.

Among the papers in his clothing was an owner's registration of a limousine in his name and the police are endeavoring to locate the car described in Haverhill. Leach did not take it to the hotel. Other papers showed him to be a member of Masonic and Elks lodges.

Leach was credit manager for a Boston department store. He was thirty-five years old and had a wife and one daughter who is nine years old.

RELATIVES SILENT.

At the Leach residence the relatives declined to comment on the suicide report.

Mrs. Leach, it was stated, was too ill to leave her room. She is said to have suffered an attack of nervous prostration Saturday night, following her husband's disappearance earlier in the day.

Leach and his family moved to Newtonville from Everett last June.

Fresh From Paris—

Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

THE smartly simple tailleur and the trotteur frock sketched above present the broadcloth and fur combination which is so much in evidence in Paris this season. The tailleur at the left is of horizon blue broadcloth, banded in mink. The coat back is cut separately and applied, and the sleeves are in two sections, the full lower part being attached above the elbow. It is a style of the present fur mode to cuff sleeves deeply or not cuff them at all.

When black broadcloth desires to be particularly modish it bands itself with gray astrakhan, as in the frock at the right. These narrow bands trim both front and back of the collar and skirt of this simple chemise model, and its astrakhan cuffs reach nearly to the elbow. Tiny astrakhan buttons are applied in rows to the girdle.

CROWD PURSUES THIEF WHO GOT $500 ROLL

South End Fugitive Halted at Gun Point by Police After Exciting Chase

More than 300 people joined in an exciting half-mile chase through the streets of the South End to catch a man said to have snatched a $500 bank roll from the hands of a patron at the Grand Opera House on Washington street.

The chase ended when Patrolman William Dooley of the East Dedham street station dashed through the streets and halted the fugitive. Hooked at the station, on a charge of larceny, the man gave the name of John Melvin of No. 34 Sharon street, South End.

SHOWS BIG ROLL.

According to the police and by-standers, Melvin walked into the lobby of the theatre as Philip Kaufman of No. 168 C street, South Boston, was buying a ticket. In making the purchase Kaufman drew from his pocket a huge roll of bills.

Melvin, police say, leaped forward and grabbed the money. Before Kaufman could halt him he turned and dashed out, down Washington street. Kaufman sprang after him and was joined by a crowd that grew to large proportions before the man had gone a block.

HALTED WITH REVOLVER.

Running down Washington street, Melvin cut across side streets until he came to Tremont street. He proceeded down Tremont street to Dwight street, where he turned and fled toward Shawmut avenue. Here, however, Patrolman Dooley, who had joined the chase on Tremont street, succeeded in overtaking him and with a drawn revolver compelled his surrender.

The entire $500 taken from Kaufman was said to have been found on Melvin's person after the arrest. He is also charged with having made a previous attempt to snatch a bankroll from Rebecca Parker of No. 85 Poplar street a few moments before taking Kaufman's money.

Trail of Stolen Flour Leads to Arrest of Woman

Patrolman Walter Donovan of the Joy street station, following a thin white trail of flour across an alley and over a back yard to a kitchen door in a dwelling house near the grocery store of Goose Snyder of No. 101 Brighton street, West End, recovered two sacks of flour that had been taken from the store, and caused a woman living in the house to be ordered to appear at the station for questioning.

Snyder reported that the sacks had been stolen during the night. Donovan investigated, and found the trail leading from the counter, out a rear window and over to the woman's house. An arrest is expected to result.

CONSPIRACY IN PREMIER HARA'S DEATH CHARGED

Station Master at Depot Where Japanese Statesman Met Death Is Arrested

Tokio, Nov. 7 (by the Associated Press).—Kogoro Hashimoto, assistant station master at the Otsuka railway station, where Premier Takashi was assassinated Friday night, has been arrested, charged with complicity in the crime. About twenty others, employes at the station were released after being questioned.

Kyoichi Nakoka, the assassin insists, the police say, that he had no accomplices. The police believe, however, that the statesman's death was brought about through a conspiracy. This belief is strengthened by the fact that a well-dressed, unidentified man was seen hurrying from the station at the moment Nakora thrust his sword into the premier's breast. The authorities are of the opinion that the youth's statement that he alone conceived the crime was made in an effort to shield his confederates.

Nakoka was in hiding on the station platform when the Premier and a number of other leaders of the political party arrived to take the 7:25 train for Kioto, where a meeting was to be held. As the Premier, chatting with his companions, passed through the gate leading to the station platform Nakoka leaped from his hiding place and plunged a short sword into M. Hara's left breast, at the same time exclaiming, "The country's enemy."

First aid was administered to the stricken Premier in the station master's room and he was then taken to the station, where he died within a short time.

Marquise Matsukata, lord keeper of the privy seal, following a conference at the palace with Marquis Saionji, left for the villa of Field Marshal Prince Yamagata in Odawara to confer with the prince, who is 11. Marquis Saionji is most prominently mentioned for the premiership, but it is doubtful if he would accept. Viscount Makino is also being considered for the post.

DRIVERS ACT TO HALT NEW YORK MILK STRIKE

Union Chiefs Call Conference and Dealers Propose Arbitration Board

By International News Service.

New York, Nov. 7.—Attempts to halt the strike of milk wagon drivers were renewed today when union chiefs called a meeting of strikers to review the situation and a committee from the distributors conferred with Health Commissioner Copeland with regard to arbitrating differences.

The New York Milk Conference Board proposed organization of a milk labor board, consisting of representatives of the city, the distributors and the drivers, to settle all wage disputes in the milk industry.

Distributors have made plans to conduct a "truckster" delivery service, the wagons covering certain routes and customers to buy their milk supplies in the street. It was said a reduction in the price of milk products would result from this system.

One strike-breaker was shot and seriously wounded in a fight with strikers. Two arrests were made.

Disturbances prompted a 50 per cent. normal supply today and claimed deliveries were 75 per cent. normal on Saturday. Health Commissioner Copeland denied this and said supplies were now about 85 per cent. normal.

Strike sympathizers in an automobile hailed two delivery wagons in Brooklyn, dragged the driver and his helper from their seats and emptied the milk in the gutter. The drivers fled, to return in a short time

ARBUCKLE CASE POSTPONED A WEEK

Two Holidays and Lack of Preparation Delay Start Till Next Monday

International News Service.

San Francisco, Nov. 7.—Though scheduled to go on trial today for manslaughter as the result of the death of Virginia Rappe, one of the guests at his gay Labor Day party here, Roscoe C. "Fatty" Arbuckle, famous laughsmith of the screen gained a week's grace.

A combination of circumstances entered into the delay. Two holidays this week—Election Day and Armistice Day—promised to break up the trial had it started as scheduled. In addition there had been doubt whether the defence attorneys would be able to gather certain evidence in the East in time.

This they succeeded in doing but District Attorney Matthew Brady, gathering counter evidence, was not able to complete his investigation by today. Arbuckle, who with his wife, Minta Durfee Arbuckle has been living quietly for the past two weeks at a downtown hotel, was on hand for the trial by agreement.

When the case was called before Superior Court Judge Harold Louderback, a motion was scheduled to be made seeking the delay, and, in view of the agreement of both sides, Judge Louderback was expected to set Monday as the date for the opening of the trial.

The fact that today's appearance was to be purely formal did not prevent a crowd from gathering at the Hall of Justice early.

Despite the fact that Arbuckle has been living for two weeks within a stone's throw of the scene of the gay hotel party, out of which the tragedy resulted, but few persons knew that the noted film star was in the city.

The two weeks just past probably have been the quietest in the screen comedian's life at least in recent years. He has been seen but little outside his hotel.

A phonograph has furnished his chief diversion. Most of his meals have been served in his room.

DOLORES COURAUD WON'T WED "CLUMSY DANCER"

Paris, Nov. 7.—The clumsy dancing of Khan Nezan El Moulk, a descendant of ancient Mesopotamian kings, was responsible for the breaking off of his engagement with Miss Dolores Couraud, daughter of Mrs. Aimee Crocker Couraud of New York and California, according to gossip here today. Miss Couraud was said to have complained that her fiance stepped on her feet when they danced.

MERRILL GRISWOLD WINS VOTERS OF CAMBRIDGE

One of the candidates which the leading political wiseacres of Cambridge say is sure of success at the Cambridge city election tomorrow is Merrill Griswold, candidate for city council-at-large. Mr. Griswold has the support of leading members of both parties.

Mr. Griswold is from Ward 8, but, unlike the candidates who have heretofore run from that district, he has conducted his campaign throughout the city and has developed amazing strength in all parts of the municipality in Democratic as well as Republican strongholds.

Mr. Griswold is one of the leading younger members of the Boston Bar. He was educated in the Cambridge schools, Harvard College (1907) and Harvard Law School (1911). While at the law school he was an editor of the Harvard Law Review. Mr. Griswold is a member of the firm of Gaston, Snow, Saltonstall & Hunt.

He enlisted in the navy at the outbreak of the war as an ordinary seaman, and was later promoted to the rank of lieutenant, junior grade.

Arlington Street Subway Station NEWS

1—When will it open?

THOSE who are impatiently awaiting the opening of the new Arlington Street Subway Station will be glad to learn that the Transit Commission has practically completed its work.

Before the station can be opened to the public, of course, the "Elevated" must install the electric wiring and lighting fixtures, place the turnstiles, locate the coin stands, build the cashiers' booths.

Just how long this will take no one can estimate exactly. It is not believed, however, that it will be more than a few weeks before the station is opened—in ample time for Christmas shopping.

These Paine news bulletins will give you ample notice of the actual opening, together with much else of interest concerning this newest and probably the finest of the many Boston subway stations.

OPERATION IS EXPECTED TO CURE CONVICT

Sing Sing Inmate Recovering After Removal of Bullet From Brain

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Removal of a bullet which had been imbedded for several years in the brain of Robert Leondowski, a life prisoner at Sing Sing, was attended by such success that it is expected he will be returned to the prison shortly from Dannemora State Hospital.

He was removed to that institution when he displayed fits of insane violence many months ago. Leondowski, hospital physicians say, shows marked physical and mental improvement and no longer suffers fits of violence and mental depression.

The bullet was removed by Dr. William L. Chapman of New York city, who suffered a stroke of paralysis after he had given his promise to operate. In consequence Dr. Chapman performed the delicate operation from a wheel chair aided by two assistants.

The bullet, which hospital physicians believed to have been the primary cause of criminal tendencies in Leondowski, was found imbedded in the brain tissue. Leondowski was convicted of murder.

CHARLES ON HIS WAY TO ISLAND OF EXILE

Ex-Emperor and Wife on Black Sea Aboard the British Cruiser Cardiff

By Associated Press.

Budapest, Nov. 7.—Former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary and his wife, who were last reported to be at Galatz, Rumania, awaiting the British light cruiser Cardiff to carry them to their place of exile in the Island of Madeira, were believed today to have passed out of the Danube into the Black Sea, on their way to the Bosphorus.

With the former King-Emperor being carried to the island in the Atlantic Ocean, 440 miles from the Moroccan coast, after his latest spectacular attempt to regain his lost empire, the National Assembly at a special session yesterday enacted into law a bill dethroning him and ousting the entire Hapsburg dynasty.

Formal permission has been given by the Portuguese government for the deportation of Charls and his family to Madeira.

They will probably reside at Funchal, where living quarters are available in the wing of an unfinished sanatorium, abandoned by German financiers because of a disagreement with the Portuguese government.

Prettier Teeth Next Week

If you will now start this delightful test

This is to offer you a way to whiter teeth, cleaner, safer teeth. Such glistening teeth as millions now enjoy.

Any dealer named below will give you the means. Get it and watch the effects. See your teeth grow prettier—note how clean they feel.

Dentists everywhere advise this method. Millions of homes have adopted it. Try it this week, for your own sake. Learn what it means to you.

To remove the film

Your teeth are coated with a dingy film. It is viscous — you can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. It clouds the teeth and causes most tooth troubles.

The ordinary tooth paste does not effectively combat it, so the tooth brush has left much of it intact. As a result, teeth lose their luster. And, despite all brushing, tooth troubles have been constantly increasing.

The film is what discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Many other serious troubles are also traced to them.

Science combats it

Dental science has long sought ways to combat that film. The ways have now been found. Able authorities have amply proved them. Leading dentists everywhere advise their daily use.

The methods are embodied in a new-day tooth paste—Pepsodent. It combats the film wherever it may linger. In this way it brings surprising results which one quickly sees. Over 5,000 new people daily are trying out this modern method.

Fights acids too

Pepsodent brings three other effects which authorities now desire.

It multiplies the salivary flow—Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise form acid.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's neutralizer for the acids which cause decay. Pepsin is also included.

Do this for your own sake—for your family's sake. Watch how your teeth improve. The delightful effects will very soon convince you what is best.

Every application of Pepsodent brings five distinct results. And modern authorities consider all of them essential.

Now a world method

In many countries Pepsodent is fast displacing old teeth cleaning methods. Dental authorities the world over endorse it. Careful people must adopt it sooner or later, for old methods are not right. With them, tooth troubles and discolorments have become almost universal. A change must come, and now is the time to start it.

Quick changes come

The user of Pepsodent quickly feels conspicuous changes. One cannot doubt the benefits it brings.

Perhaps men who smoke see the most conspicuous effects. Their films are tobacco-stained.

Women see them in prettier teeth, for most film-coats are dingy.

But Pepsodent is most important to the children. Their teeth seem most subject to them film and starch attacks. Dentists advise that children use Pepsodent from the time the first tooth appears.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects, and read the reasons in the book we send.

Today, that Best Recipe!

See it on the Magazine Page and read the name of this week's winner of the First Prize of $25.00! This, remember, is a WEEKLY competition!

A call to all the cooks of Boston.

The Boston American seeks a collection of Boston recipes.

Send in your best one!

Tell us exactly how you prepare your best dish; the one you like best; the one your husband prefers; the one the children talk about.

For the best recipe sent to us each week, the Boston American will give an order for $25 worth of groceries and provisions. For every other recipe which appeals to the judges and for which room for publication is found the Boston American will pay an honorarium of One Dollar.

Twenty-five dollars in groceries or provisions, remember, for the Best Boston Recipe of the week; One dollar for every other recipe we print.

The Rules of This Cookery Contest Are Few and Simple

1—In sending your recipe either attach a sales slip, not more than one week old, from the establishment of some dealer in foodstuffs—grocery, market, delicatessen—whose advertisement you see in the Boston American during the current week or write the name and address of the store on the same sheet with the recipe, if the dealer does not give sales slips.

2—Write upon one side of the paper only.

3—At the top of the sheet write plainly your name and address.

The winner will receive an order on the store whose sales slip or name and address is attached to the prize recipe for $25 worth of groceries and provisions.

Please give special attention, for a minute, to Rule 1. It does NOT mean that you must buy all or any of the things called for by your recipe from a Boston American advertiser or from Boston American advertisers. You may never have bought a single one of them in these places. Your recent purchase from a Boston American advertiser may be of any foodstuff, in or out of your recipe. It may be for fifty cents or for ten dollars; the amount is not important. The Prize Boston Recipe Contest has a three-fold object. We want (1) for the information and instruction of all our readers, the best recipes we can get from (2) Boston American cooks who (3) trade with Boston American advertisers.

So mothers, sisters, aunts, housekeepers, send us without delay that recipe for which you are famed among friends and kinfolk, but be sure to send along with it a sales slip not more than one week old from some establishment, dealing in foodstuffs, whose advertisement you find in the Boston American during the current week or the name and address of the dealer if he does not give sales slips.

And suit yourself about the kind of recipe you select. It may be that your baked beans are famous. John, your good man, may boast that his wife's baked beans "can't be beat" even in Boston. Perhaps there is something special in the way you prepare them. Tell us about it.

Or, possibly it is your brown bread, or your New England boiled dinner.

Pie! There's a typically New England, typically Boston article. Which is your best pie? How is it done?

Or it may be cake. It may be any of the thousand things New England women—Boston women—make better than any other women anywhere in America.

And by "Boston," of course, we mean "Greater Boston." The sales slip will tell the story. If you reside within trading distance of Boston American advertisers we shall assume—for the purpose of this contest—that you are a Bostonian.

Begin today reading the food advertisements in the Boston American. The current week's sales slip or the name and address of any grocery or provision dealer advertising in the Boston American entitles you to compete.

Entries close every Tuesday evening. Prize-winning announcements in the following week, beginning on Monday with the publication of the week's Best Recipe. Watch the Magazine Page.

Send in YOUR Best Recipe today with sales slip attached or name of dealer.

All entries for the Best Boston Recipe Contest should be addressed to

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS

HOLBROOK BLINN was casually brandishing a huge revolver when I went backstage at the Plymouth Theatre for a chat with him after the matinee the other day.

"See!" he exclaimed, bringing the gun to rest comparatively before my eyes. "See! Isn't that a beauty? Mr. Lasky gave it to me a short time ago just for my part of Pancho Lopez in "The Bad Man." It's a REAL GUN. Look at the carving there on the mother of pearl handle. Isn't that wonderful? And look at—"

The only thing that was in my mind at the time was what it would do. "It seems to be a very good revolver," I agreed doubtfully. I wasn't even sure it wasn't a carbine, whatever that is. "Is it loaded?"

"Loaded!" Mr. Blinn snorted indignantly. "Loaded! Of course it's loaded!"

The weapon went up several notches in my esteem. I even grew enthusiastic over its merits. "Isn't it wonderful?" I marvelled. "Would he never put it down!

REAL "PUNCHERS" GUN.

The enthusiasm woke a more responsive spark in him. "Yes," he agreed. "See that carving. Mr. Lasky looked all through the West for it. It's a real puncher's revolver, the kind you'd find down on the Mexican border! Here—" He thrust it confidingly into my face. "Here, look at the way it's carved." I didn't dare not look. You never know what a gun might do.

"It's a beauty! Wonderfully carved! And, oh, that—isn't that good looking! What is it! I had made a discovery. Mr. Blinn looked at it.

"That? Oh, that's the Colt trademark!"

There was nothing more to be said. We talked of other things.

Holbrook Blinn figured prominently in screen doings a few years ago and few World productions were allowed out of the studio without him as a special attraction. Since then he has gone back to the footlight world, but is coming back to the screen eventually.

FITTED FOR ROLE.

"The Bad Man," in which he is touring now, is his newest play. And I say newest advisedly, for it is something decidedly new for him, this role of the Mexican bandit who strikes terror into the hearts of the ranchers near the border. The romantic, rollicking "bad man" is exactly suited to Mr. Blinn's humor, his colorfulness.

"It's an interesting character, isn't it?" he said as he puffed on one of the foot-long cigarettes he uses in the piece, the ones that he, as Lopez, assures Jones are "good, he knows it because he stole them himself."

"This type is purely Latin, with all the spirit of the Mexican and Spaniard. He likes an audience. He cracks jokes, makes cleverly caustic remarks and sallies right and left—just as long as he has his hearers. It's a trait I've noticed among many Latins. They enjoy and appreciate their own humor. I've seen a man of this sort laugh at himself until there are tears in his eyes. It's a form of vanity, possibly, but it has its human side, its sane side.

"Pancho Lopez was built by Porter Emerson Browne, the playwright, around the doings and character of Villa. Villa, like Lopez, wasn't afraid to kill. 'Sho, an' why not?' he would say, just as Lopez does. And like Lopez, he felt that 'evil man' must be killed —and reserved the right to decide who was and who was not 'evil.'"

Pancho Lopez, as Mr. Blinn draws him, is a romantic, a colorful, a satirical figure, and one that has the sympathy of the audience. Some time, the exact time to be determined by the bookings of his stage tour, Mr. Blinn will do.

LOPEZ FOR THE SCREEN.

"Westerners are always good," he said. "And such a character as well as the satirical, melodramatic story wrapped around him should make a splendid screen production.

"The only thing is that it should be done now, while it is still timely. Browne has got more than a little current interest into the play; the treatment of our ex-soldiers, the Mexican raiders on the border, the intrusion of the American law, and the well-known eighteenth amendment. I hope to do it soon."

POLITICAL RING OF SOMERVILLE UNDER FIRE

Favoritism and Intimidation Charged by "Anti-Machine" Candidates for Mayor

Somerville's political machine, which has controlled affairs in that city for years, is waging a stiff fight for its existence in the present mayoralty campaign in that city. It is the first time since its formation that the machine or ring, so called, has been put on the defensive. The machine, according to many men in Somerville, is on a wild ride to destruction, and will land in the junk heap on primary day, November 22.

Former Alderman John M. Webster and Representative Warren C. Daggett are the anti-machine candidates for the Republican nomination for Mayor. John J. Murphy, a veteran of the World War, and the candidate unopposed for the Democratic nomination, is also a strong anti-machine man. Murphy charges that former Alderman Webster was forced out of his job by the "machine forces" because he refused to obey their orders and withdraw from the fight in favor of the machine candidate.

Candidate Murphy has issued a circular challenge to Eugene M. Carman, the other candidate for the Republican nomination, to debate the two-fold question: "Whether he (Carman) is the ring or machine candidate for mayor and Carman's business experience."

Charges that firemen, policemen, school employes and city laborers are being intimidated by the machine leaders and their hirelings because they dare speak favorably of a candidate other than the machine men are being made public nightly by the anti-machine candidates.

The leader of the ring, who is a contractor and was a favorite in Boston during the Curley administration, is charged with securing contracts without competition. The police are being used as footballs, according to the anti-machine men, who charge that police officers who arrest politicians connected with the machine or their friends, for violating the law, are transferred to the "Goose Farm" or some other undesirable place.

Wire Bustle Latest Hiding Place for Handy Half Pints

Williamson, W. Va., Nov. 7.—To call Frances Hobbs, a woman resident of this place, a "bootlegger" would be slander.

The dictionary defines a "bootlegger" thus: "To sell liquor against the law; so called from the practice of carrying a flask in the leg of a boot."

But, getting back to Frances Hobbs. Frances undoubtedly sold contraband liquor of a more or less uncertain quality, but she carried none of it in her boots.

She was arrested by the State police and fined $100 and sentenced to sixty days in jail by Squire Meek.

Although the State policemen knew Frances had booze on her person they could not locate it until they had another one of the same sex as Frances to do the frisking. To the amazement of the police the woman was wearing a fairly good sized bustle made of heavily padded wire. In this Frances carried several half pints loaded with moonshine.

MILLIONAIRE NEAR DEATH AS HOME BURNS

William D. Hannah Barely Escapes Blaze at Little Boar's Head, N. H.

Rye Beach, N. H., Nov. 7.—William D. Hannah, millionaire shoe manufacturer of Newburyport and Brooklyn, N. Y., nearly lost his life when fire destroyed his palatial $300,000 mansion at Little Boar's Head.

Cut off from all chance of escape through the interior of the building by the flames that swept through the hallways on the lower floors, Hannah was aroused by the cries of his servants and the barking of a pet dog just in time to flee through his window onto a small balcony, clad only in his night-clothes.

Firemen placed a ladder to the balcony and carried him to the ground, where he collapsed. He was taken to a nearby cottage for treatment.

Servants in the place declared they were awakened by a loud explosion in the interior of the building, which was a three-story affair of stone construction. As their quarters were located in the rear of the [illegible] they were able to escape down a back stairway, but all access to Hannah's room was blocked.

Although all available fire companies from Portsmouth and Hampton Beach were rushed to the scene, all efforts to save the mansion failed. A number of valuable art treasures and costly pieces of furniture were lost.

SWEET CHILDHOOD DAYS! Most folks, in retrospective mood, look down the years of life and vote childhood the happiest of their years. But these emaciated youngsters, if they ever defeat the ravages of hunger and reach man's estate, will have no such comfortable memories. Childhood to them is a nightmare, hideous, horrible. These children, starving to death in Samara, were found by the American Commission and will be saved if care and good food can accomplish anything. Millions of women have met and solved her problem

Read her letter and another woman's answer to it

You know many women like this

"—and so I feel discouraged.

"I have a family of five and for fifteen years I've done all the washing. On Monday I'm at my tubs before the family get up. Then breakfast—seeing the younger children off to school—and back to my tubs again, rubbing and rubbing until my back is ready to break. It is noon before I have my clothes on the line.

"Often I am ready to cry by the end of the day. And it isn't one wash day alone—it's the weary round of them, week after week; and every one takes just so much out of you. When I think how these wash days have made me old and robbed me of attractiveness, I ask myself why women submit to this kind of slavery.

"Yet what can we do?—"

From a letter received this week by the makers of Rinso

"—There are six people in my family—the youngest five, and I have about a hundred and seventy pieces in my wash every week. The baby's rompers and my oldest son's working clothes are the dirtiest. My son works in a machine shop and his shirts get covered with oil.

"I make a good suds with Rinso and let my clothes soak. After breakfast I rinse them out. Of course I have to rub my son's shirts and such things a little, but the Rinso has loosened the dirt and it works right out. By half past nine or ten my whole washing is on the line.

"Rinso is a wonderful saver of time and strength. It is easier on my clothes than the old way of rubbing the dirt out and a thousand times easier on me!—"

MACOMBER'S INDECISION PAVED WAY FOR THE HARVARD DEFEAT

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

"He who hesitates paves the way to defeat," may become a football axiom at Cambridge.

Clark Macomber who for three and two-thirds periods of a four-period game had been thrilling a Palmer Stadium audience with his brilliant play, [illegible] a seemingly certain Crimson victory was turned into a Tiger triumph.

It must be admitted [illegible] son wigman was given reasons to hesitate [illegible] been taught otherwise [illegible] ful moment of [illegible] of action [illegible] meant glory [illegible] fame for himself [illegible] possessed no such attractive possibilities and [illegible] been successfully [illegible]

But five minutes of play remained of the game and Harvard was leading Princeton 3 to 0, at the time. A Princeton forward pass play was expected and the Crimson team deployed to meet it assuming a formation that held Macomber responsible for the forward pass receiving zone between the sideline and Harvard's left tackle and backward from the scrimmage line to the interlocking zone of Fitts, the wing back on the same side of the field.

• • •

Wittmer, the Tiger centre, passed the ball to Snively a Tiger end who had been delegated to make the pass from a point ten yards behind the line of scrimmage [illegible] back, grouped [illegible] Princeton line with Stinson and Lourie, halted temporarily [illegible] place while [illegible] scurried down the field [illegible] entered the zone guarded by Macomber.

• • •

Macomber saw him coming, then saw the pass being hurtled toward him and started for the point at which Gilroy and the ball were to meet. Then he hesitated.

Stretching between Macomber and the Princeton [illegible] intercepting the pass [illegible] was certain [illegible] for the Crimson [illegible] ing his team with a [illegible] could not overcome in the few remaining moments of play.

By tackling Gilroy the moment the latter [illegible] halt the play [illegible] yard [illegible] ton fifty five yards from Harvard's goal.

• • •

The ball was [illegible] nearer and nearer as [illegible] most in [illegible] acted and when [illegible] dently was [illegible] the better course [illegible] he sought to [illegible] with the other to tackle the Tiger halfback.

• • •

Doing two things at once has been argued as impossible and that argument was borne out then and there, for Macomber neither intercepted the pass nor tackled the runner, and Gilroy started on the sixty-four-yard journey that gave Princeton a touchdown and the victory.

• • •

One chance remained to halt the Princeton runner. It rested with Roscoe Fitts who [illegible] all the afternoon [illegible] day this [illegible] star [illegible] tered on [illegible] gather himself [illegible]

[illegible] body at the ponderous Princeton team and as Gilroy [illegible] energy sufficient to crowd the Princeton man off the field of play.

• • •

But he already had overdrawn on his strength [illegible] limped toward him just [illegible] too late and the speedy [illegible] yards to a touchdown and victory.

• • •

Whatever is the [illegible] [illegible] possessed.

• • •

[illegible] courage [illegible] outfought [illegible] [illegible] team.

• • •

It was the irony of fate that such a team could halt the ponderous Tigers on four plays between Harvard's five-yard line and the goal and then, after gaining a well-deserved lead, lose the contest through a single play made sixty-four yards from the Crimson's last white line. Such, however, was the case, and it is the score and not the playing of the game that goes down in the record books.

• • •

[illegible] upright, Princeton [illegible] touchdown [illegible]

The second [illegible] [illegible] into the lead [illegible] the first period.

It is true that the Newton boy was dazed but it was quite possible he could have recovered on the field in time to engage in a play or two, and Owen, himself, pleaded with Dr. Nichols to be allowed to remain in there. But his plea did not change the physician's views and Coburn went to left halfback for Harvard and on the first play, he or one of the other backs, missed the signal, interfered with the pass, and Harvard lost ten yards, and on [illegible] for a further loss, and ultimately calling for a forward pass, Harvard lost the ball through a touchback.

MALDEN AND NEWTON IN CLASH ON SATURDAY MAY DECIDE TITLE

By FRED C. LANE.

The Suburban League entered its sixth week with the deadlock between Malden and Newton unchanged. Up to date each has furnished the quality of football that makes a winning team. The grand clash between these two teams will take place on Saturday, when the largest gathering of the season is expected at the Malden Athletic Field.

Newton's showing against Cambridge Latin brought to light the fact that Newton has the strongest line. Coach Dickinson has the services of two sets of line men with little difference between them in their ability. Malden on the other hand has a gritty clan of youngsters but whatever they can cope with the smashing attack of the Newton men remains to be proved.

Malden's game against Somerville was excellent. It was a far different Somerville team than that which played Newton on October 15.

Zaraskoy, that veteran athlete of Cambridge Latin, was never able to show his wares in the Newton game [illegible] Garden City team is a tower of strength and was instrumental in many of the famous Zaraskoy end runs being ripped [illegible]

In fact none [illegible] players was able to [illegible] second defense of Newton [illegible] new line was rushed [illegible] The Bowens, at centre and guard are a combination that will give the fast running Malden back field plenty of [illegible]

Osborne and Butler, stars, will be opposed.

The forward pass will have a [illegible] ing role in this game as each [illegible] has mastered this means [illegible] Newton put across its first [illegible] bridge game [illegible] and Malden has used it all season with [illegible] results.

The North Shore territory was the scene of many activities. The action of the Revere team in leaving the field after a decision by Referee Crowley, was poor judgment on the part of Captain [illegible] who called his teammates to the sidelines, forfeiting the game to Lynn Classical after putting up an attack that baffled the Lynn team.

There [illegible] minds of those who attended that Revere would have [illegible] if the contest continued [illegible] outplayed the [illegible] first [illegible]

• • •

If charges are pressed against [illegible] working the Lynn [illegible] [illegible] the assault happened in the spirit of the moment. The Lynn [illegible] services of their leader [illegible] for the same [illegible]

The [illegible] of the Lynn [illegible] was to doubt the reason [illegible] never had the Lynn [illegible] given any consideration.

PIVOTING IS THE WHOLE SECRET OF GOLF

By JOCK HUTCHISON

In a conversation with George Duncan recently, the famous Scotch professional, who, by the way, was the man I picked to defeat Bobby Jones in Scotland this year, told me that he considered pivoting the whole secret of golf. He asserted that nothing else really mattered if the pivoting was done properly.

I have read of Duncan's ideas on golf and I agree with him on the main points, but I do not go so far as to say that pivoting is the only essential matter.

When George was over here I was playing more golf than the average professional golfer in this country. In this respect I am going to be about the same. I want to be "about so."

You can insert for greeting the word "pivot" in place of "swing" in the first paragraph leading up to the point where it is mentioned.

There are three things that I think are all important in the pivot. First, the position of the left knee; second, the left shoulder, and, third, the left hip.

Many players do not realize that the left knee should be kept well bent throughout the swing. Some players straighten it as the club is coming down to the ball. This is very fatal to good golf.

Golfers think they pivot when to a close observer there is absolutely no sign of it. If you hear a player complaining about losing his drive and not being able to get the old distance, more is to ten to one he is not pivoting as he used to do.

The backswing movement must not be too sudden. At the top of the swing, your whole left side should face the ball. At the finish of the shot it is almost exactly the reverse. Your right side should be facing the spot where the ball was teed.

Says a Woman's Business Is to Make Her Husband Happy, but a Lot of Dames Aren't Working at Their Trade

Divorces are becoming more numerous every day. The trouble is that some people don't get married at all and others get married too often.

When a woman is tired of her husband there is only one way to get rid of him and that is as quickly as possible.

Every man and wife can agree, but not with each other.

He tried to drown his troubles, but she was able to swim.

He thought his wife was the cream of them all, but she put him through the separator.

Happiness is half-way between California and Nevada and Reno is there.

A woman's business is to make her husband happy but a lot of dames aren't working at their trade.

Before you're married it takes two to make an argument but after you're married the number is cut down to one.

This Day in Our History—November 7, 1921

THIS is the anniversary of the Battle of Tippecanoe, in 1811, when General Harrison defeated the Indians, who treacherously attacked him under the leadership of "The Prophet." The battle furnished the slogan, "Tippecanoe and Tyler too."

PLATINUM, first discovered in South America, and worth about six times as much as gold, was once thrown aside as a worthless by-product. Specimens of the ore were brought to England from Jamaica in 1741.

GET-RICH-QUICK WALLINGFORD

A Delightful Serial of Adventure, Intrigue and the Triumph of Love Over Dishonesty

("Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" is a Cosmopolitan Production based on some of the famous Wallingford stories and the famous play by George M. Cohan, directed by Frank Borzage and released as a Paramount Picture.)

NOT even the most enthusias[illegible] State of Iowa would have [illegible] for [illegible]

For [illegible] Battlesburg had gone [illegible] lages [illegible] towns and [illegible] to [illegible] Battles [illegible] brother George Wa[illegible] Battles [illegible] backed him up.

What G. W. said was law and gospel to Andy Dempsey, proprietor [illegible] hotel and as the local celebrities of Battlesburg [illegible] became law and gospel [illegible]

A New Arrival

Now and again some hopeful stranger [illegible] suggest [illegible] schemes for utilizing water power, trolley developments and other modern ideas; invariably [illegible] possibilities.

[illegible] trains stopped at Battlesburg, the Overland thundered through disdaining to slow a wheel [illegible] for the crossing. Battlesburg, so far as the outside world was concerned, might as well have been off the map.

And then one mild day while Abe Gunther, the hackman who drove the few and far between guests of the Palace, was waiting for the day train from Des Moines, a man stepped to the platform and asked the name of the best hotel in the place.

Mr. Gunther dispensed with the [illegible] and hurried [illegible] observing [illegible] a drummer.

[illegible] said the new [illegible] Daw from New York [illegible] will be along later [illegible]

"Oh, you're not a drummer, then?"

"No, I don't know enough to be [illegible] Many people [illegible]

"Oh, a few, a few—" said Abe discreetly, "but I reckon you won't find it dull."

Mr. Daw's glance took in the [illegible] as the horse jogged along the main street, his inward com[illegible] at the porch of The Palace.

Sowing the Seed

The proprietor, who believed in the personal equation, came out to meet him, hand extended; a broad grin appeared on the fat face of Eddie Lamb, the clerk, and [illegible] show of interest.

In such a fashion Horace Daw came into Battlesburg, and in like fashion he remained. But the reason for his presence there was for some days a mystery. He was nice to look at, well dressed, a model of courtesy and quickly partial to Dorothy Welles, the chum of the proprietor's daughter and one of the prettiest girls in town.

Mr. Daw played a little and sang a little and danced divinely, and also he knew how to spend wisely and well, within a week he was the most popular person in town.

He lamented [illegible] place with such possibilities should be dying on its feet. He seemed to take it as a personal grief and he was so sincere that he convinced Clint Harkins, editor and reporter of The Blade, Battlesburg's only newspaper.

Mr. Harkins voiced in print as [illegible] that Daw had whispered to him in confidence.

"What do you think of that?" asked George Washington Battles when he had read some of these.

"That fellow Harkins been doing something new?" asked Dempsey.

"He ought to be turned out of [illegible] Here he is advocating a wake-up campaign, says we're all asleep, rotting away, going to rust and all that——"

"Harkins is a fool," cried Eddie Lamb.

"Says we ought to change the name of the town to Pea[illegible] well, he can't try any of his fool notions on me."

"I'll bet he got that from the feller in there playin' the piano," volunteered Dempsey.

"You mean Daw?"

"That's the fellow I mean—what's he here for, anyway? [illegible] around with the girls—he may be a highwayman for all I know."

The absurdity of this suggestion caused a [illegible] Mr. Battles turned on [illegible]

"What you [illegible] at? Has been [illegible] if you know what's goin' on you got a right to tell."

"I guess I know enough to keep things to myself," answered Fannie [illegible] when they're confidential."

Fresh sounds of music came from the other room and Mr. Dempsey's [illegible] "I'm goin' to tell my Gertie to keep away from that feller," he cried as the [illegible] appeared in the doorway.

"Well, gentlemen," cried Harkins, beaming, "what do you think of my editorial? Pretty good, eh?"

"Don't you believe in progression?"

A Sound Belief

"I don't believe in anything but saving money."

"Well," said Dempsey, "if the town would loosen up with new ideas, build a new hotel, and start things a hummin' no one can deny it would be a good thing for business."

"You said it all, Dempsey," cried Harkins. "What's the good of having money if you don't do anything [illegible]

"[illegible] new Baptist [illegible]

"Why don't we put up an opera house where the people can see a good show?" countered Harkins.

"And how about a modern hotel?" repeated Dempsey.

"Here we are, fourteen thousand people and only nine automobiles—we ought to have ten thousand."

"My great Grandfather Benjamin," said Mr. Battles, "preached against all these redfire methods; so did his son, and so did my father, and I intend living up to their notions."

"Look here," said Harkins, [illegible] man in town, "I don't say they weren't right [illegible] to be made [illegible] to improve [illegible] then [illegible]

"Claptrap," answered Mr. Battles, not [illegible]

"[illegible] the trolley situation," Harkins went on—"you certainly want a line between here and Hoytsville?"

"No need of it," snapped the colonel; "I don't believe in trolley lines; too many accidents."

Good Advice

"Can you beat that?" asked the now indignant Harkins of Dempsey. "I'd never have believed it of you, colonel."

Mr. Battles, ignoring [illegible] turned to Fannie as though to [illegible]

"Well," he asked, "how's the typewritin' business?"

"It's been very good lately," Fannie answered.

"I'm glad to hear it—you save what you make, every cent you can [illegible] when the weeks come that aren't so good you won't have to worry."

Mr. Battles having delivered himself of this oracular utterance, took his departure toward the bar in the next room where, since the advent of prohibition, soft drinks were served while the patrons lamented the good old days for lack of something better to do.

"Here's that letter you dictated, Mr. Dempsey," said Fannie when the colonel had left and Harkins had followed [illegible] addressed it to [illegible] personally."

The proprietor reached for the sheet and read aloud the closing sentence for the edification of Eddie Lamb: "Theodore Roosevelt, Lillian Russell, and James J. Corbett have stopped at my hotel and expressed themselves as glad when they went." Eddie Lamb nodded approval—"that ought to fetch him."

"I reckon so," chuckled Mr. Dempsey, handing the letter back; "just stick my signature on the bottom of that, Fannie, and give it to Willie to mail."

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

ROMANCE OF NEWLY WEDDED LIFE

By Ann Lisle

I STOPPED, realizing that I was on the verge of expressing the very thing I didn't want said between us. But Miss Storrs finished [illegible] for me.

"[illegible] more astonished at [illegible] to dictate to you," she [illegible] My position here is very difficult, Mrs. Harrison [illegible] you've been very sweet about it—"

Then she in turn stopped abruptly and we [illegible] other [illegible] of things we couldn't [illegible] After a moment, when the silence grew unbearable, I plunged into the midst of [illegible] between us.

"[illegible] to work [illegible]" I said smoothly, "but it won't give Mr. [illegible] vital [illegible] with [illegible] In fact [illegible] they see coming [illegible] the more discouraged [illegible] which [illegible] more than I need for my living, you may as well turn the sum you've been sending me back into the business. Under the new circumstances which have arisen that's only sane."

"Yes, it is true," replied Miss Storrs after a minute or two of consideration.

The mere fact of her agreeing to this point made me realize that things were in a very bad way. [illegible] from my bag, I held it out to her.

"I might as well start now," I said. "And there's another matter. [illegible] rent [illegible] we get from my apartment every month? Will that be of more real service to my husband put away in the bank as a sinking fund against [illegible]

Miss Storrs [illegible] Twice she opened her lips to reply and twice she closed them again while back of her steady eyes I could almost see the thought-processes. Finally she took up a pencil and began [illegible] She was so [illegible] in her concentration that she forgot to mask her real feelings and [illegible] could see how nervous and hard[illegible] she had become in the [illegible] days. At last she looked up and said quietly:

"We'll manage without your help, Mrs. Harrison. It's best to have a—reserve fund—for emergencies."

"If you need the rent money, however, you know it's at your disposal," I said, then added half [illegible] "See how I trust you? I [illegible] as sure of me."

"[illegible]" she replied very gently. "Don't think I lack faith in you—or fail to recognize that you're a sane and generous woman as well as a—very able one. I've seen you face a situation you couldn't be expected to sympathize with and—face it down. But if Mr. Harrison hadn't wanted to spare you, if he hadn't wanted to make things easy for you, would he have put me here? That's why I feel as if I'm failing him when I don't find some way to make life—more like a bed of roses for you."

I laughed to relieve the tension and because I was afraid that the sentiment her splendid frankness had aroused bordered on the maudlin.

"I don't like beds of roses! I prefer stuffy offices, if I can't get into the modern efficient sunlit kind," I declared. "And think how much fun it's going to be for me to bring you a little check every week instead of taking one——"

"You won't do that!" cried Mabel Storrs tensely.

FAGGED FEELINGS DRAG SPIRITS DOWN

Caused By Decayed Waste in Blood—Pepto-Mangan Needed

When a man's feelings get into a crumbling condition and the fabric of his strength seems unstable, and he begins to look sullen and think dark, discouraged thoughts, it is usually caused by stale blood, clogged with waste which acts like a poison on the system.

In such weakened blood Gude's Pepto-Mangan starts a change. It feeds the blood with iron and other ingredients that make blood red and full of vigor. There is immediate evidence of the restorative powers of enriched blood. Perhaps it is more noticeable in the smack and flavor of food. [illegible]

Physicians recommend and prescribe Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It is a recognized blood builder, and it has genuine medicinal value. Sold in both liquid and tablet form.—Advertisement.

If fruit stains [illegible] can be dealt with as soon as they are done, place the stained part over a bowl, and pour boiling water through it; if later, the best way is to steep it in oxalic acid, being careful to rinse the parts thoroughly afterwards.

* * *

Take sound fruit or vegetables, and prepare them according to their kind, viz., slice apples in rings, [illegible] cabbage, slice carrots and turnips, peel and cut onions in rings. Then spread in single layers [illegible] a warm oven till shriveled and dry. When they are [illegible] air-tight tins or jars, and store them till wanted. Then soak them for at least twelve hours in cold water, using the same water to cook them in afterwards.

OLD GOWNS RENEWED

—By Rita Stuyvesant—

IF you have a sleeveless crepe silk frock of light color from the Summer days why not dye it a dark shade and wear it for Autumn days under the top coat. One frock of cerise crepe was dyed at home from its original shade to black. With it was worn a simple guimpe of [illegible] three-quarter sleeves that flared fashionably. A linked girdle of [illegible] about the hips, and the little frock now passes on its way quite unrecognized.

Nearly everyone has a navy tri[illegible] for business or general wear it could be supplied with a cream net guimpe, but for dressy occasions wear a guimpe of navy georgette with great flaring sleeves, or perhaps one of a brighter shade such as [illegible]

Very often if you [illegible] use a georgette blouse in gay colors and wear it with [illegible] sleeveless frock [illegible] or taffeta, the effect is unusually effective for a [illegible] affair.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Is He Desirable?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am deeply in love with a young man whom my father employed in his business, and, knowing our love, discharged him. Of course, our friendship ended, because I had to listen to my parents. I see him often, but I do not talk to him, as I haven't the nerve to explain to him the situation. He is twenty-five and handsome. The [illegible] is because he is "wild" and I am very quiet.

Shall I explain to him?

M. K. G.

A MAN who is [illegible] and who doesn't make good at business lacks two of the qualities it is well to have in a husband. A mercenary attitude is objectionable, but a man who hasn't [illegible] is not very desirable as a life partner. Suppose you stop [illegible] him when you see him. Ask your people if they have any objection to your friendship?

Mrs. Casey: "It is, indade. And the most wonderful part of it all is it's only a wooden bird."

Good Hens

Mrs. Hotherington kept fowls in her back garden. "Are your hens good laying hens?" asked a neighbor. "[illegible]," she replied in a delighted tone, "they haven't laid a [illegible]"

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its color and lustre or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly [illegible] it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.—Advertisement.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You're probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? [illegible] cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex, then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way [illegible] never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly-concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

The inclination in high places now is to await international developments, particularly at Washington.

For this and other reasons hesitancy, rather than quickened improvement, may be experienced temporarily.

* * *

In this event, a relapse into pessimism must be guarded against. The progress already made is more substantial and more comprehensive than popularly recognized. Stop for a moment and reflect upon such developments as these:

The wherewithal to conduct business and enterprise has declined very substantially in cost and increased enormously in supply. The largest Federal Reserve has this year lowered its discount rate from 7 to 4½ per cent. Instead of bond issues carrying 8 per cent. coupons, the latest railway offering gives a yield of less than 6 per cent. The Treasury Department, although paying as low as 4¼ per cent. on its new obligations, was tendered $600,000,000 when it asked for only $200,000,000. The country's reserve ratio last week climber to a new maximum since 1917, at 71 per cent. The consequence is that competition for trustworthy bonds at advancing quotations is now keen, and it is a moral certainty that the availability of an abundance of borrowable capital will stimulate the spread and the speeding up of enterprise all around. Capital, like labor, must needs find employment in order to earn.

* * *

In many important industries buyers are no longer alarmed lest prices slump violently after purchases have been made. The index numbers show very clearly that the general price trend has become stabilized, with a slight tendency towards an advance rather than a further decline. A realization of this condition cannot well fail to whet demands, not merely for prompt shipments, but for future delivery, especially as sound concerns hereafter will experience little difficulty in obtaining necessary credit facilities.

* * *

That dependable index, iron and steel output, reveals that the corner has been definitely turned. The improvement both in production and in orders is already quite pronounced, and all indications are that the two principal consumers, the railroads and builders, will expand their demands very substantially during coming months—the railroads because they are getting into a better financial position, the builders because building is reviving very briskly. Lowering of the price for steel rails has started negotiations which may result in the placing of very extensive tonnage.

* * *

In virtually every other industry conditions today are notably better than a year ago, although the change has come about so gradually in most instances that the extent of the recovery is not fully recognized.

Leading woolen mills are booked up for months ahead.

The oil industry recently has enjoyed something of a boom, as reflected by rather sharp advances in crude oil prices.

The leather and shoe industry, at one time prostrate, is in reasonably healthy condition.

Surplus copper is gradually moving into consumption at prices which at least tend upwards rather than downwards, and before long mining operations should increase materially.

The latest weekly figures show more freight cars loaded than in any previous week since October of last year.

At last week's auction of government wool, prices advanced 7½ to 10 per cent.

The world's largest railroad took on 7,400 additional employes between September 16 and October 16, bringing its total above 207,000.

Both sugar and coffee have been much more active at strengthening prices.

Furs, totally neglected not so long ago, are now all the rage.

It is significant, too, that paper consumption is expanding, and that advertising is beginning to pick up.

* * *

Unemployment is decreasing. Should the Winter bring increased idleness in some directions, apparently effective plans have been formulated to cope with it.

* * *

Marshall Field Company report that its road salesmen are sending in "more than double" the orders received at this time last year.

The monthly reviews of the Federal Reserve Board and of various Federal Reserve banks are quite encouraging in tone. The Philadelphia Reserve Bank, for example, records that of thirty separate lines of business demand is "good" in nine, "fair" in sixteen, and "poor" in only three.

Furthermore, merchants consider prospects for holiday trade are very much brighter than they were last year. The "buyers' strike" has subsided. There is, too, this important fact to be taken into calculation. The majority of those who work for a weekly salary are in a position to purchase a larger volume of merchandise now than last year, prices having come down more than salaries.

* * *

It is proverbial that all major upward movements in securities start at the top, with governmental and similar gilt-edged investments. Hence the spectacular rise in Liberty Bonds now under way ought to be deeply significant. Investment bankers are quite confident that the demand will broaden to corporate obligations.

In a sense, the outstanding feature of the stock market is the magnitude of the short interest, as indicated by the abnormal demand for the loan of certificates to make deliveries. In a money market like today's, such bearish operations are fraught with unusual danger, notwithstanding the unfavorable features of the situation which the bears can truthfully point to, particularly in Europe as a whole and more especially in Germany, as well as in our own agricultural States.

* * *

Discriminating courage, not blind optimism, is what the present situation and the outlook warrant.

MEXICAN PETE STRONG AND ACTIVE

Oils Make the Best Forenoon Showing; Steels and Motors Seek Lower Level

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were heavy in New York at noon. Mexican Petroleum, however, was strong and active. Steels and motors were weak. Call money opened at 5 off.

The market had a good tone at the start, but it was not long retained. Prices began to ease off and the market weakened in a slow movement. Mexican Petroleum was the most active issue and took a contrary course to the list in general. It began unchanged and before the end of an hour was up more than two points. In the loan crowd at the end of the week it was offered at 1 per cent. American Sugar commanded a premium of 1-64 from borrowers. Pan American was quiet and moved up and down within a point. Domestic oils had a heavy opening but rallied. Motors displayed more strength at the outset than later. Trading in rails was inconsequential and their fluctuations were narrow. Steels were down most of the time up to mid-morning. Tobaccos dropped and equipments failed to hold early gains while there was not enough done in sugars and coppers to establish a trend.

TEA ISSUES HIGHER.

Jones Bros. and Jewell Tea sold at new 1921 highs. Several Liberty Bonds were quoted at top figures for the year to date. Big interests continued to accumulate the government's war issues and they attracted quite as much attention on the exchange as stocks. When the forenoon was half over the latter became firmer and the list looked irregular rather than weak. Tomorrow being a holiday, there was some disposition by some traders to even up on commitments and some hesitancy on the part of others about extending them.

MARKS STILL FALLING.

For the fourth consecutive day German marks opened at a new record low. They were first quoted at .0036½ and were soon selling at .0036, a decline of .0006 since Saturday. The latest Reichsbank statement shows 3,400,000,000 more marks were put into circulation in a week. London reports as another depressing influence the failure of negotiations between British and German financiers for a £25,000,000 industrial loan.

Railroad Items

It is reported that the Missouri-Pacific will rebuild the Arkansas Central Railway, operating between Fort Smith and Paris, Ark., a distance of 46 miles, at an expenditure of approximately $3,000,000.

The Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio Railroad has applied for authority to issue $7,000,000 first and consolidated mortgage gold bonds, series A, under a $40,000,000 mortgage of the company and $7,369,000 of first and consolidated mortgage gold bonds, series B.

In September the Southern Pacific reduced its transportation costs $2,650,000 as compared with that 1920 month, bringing the cut for nine months of this year to $5,999,000. Its maintenance costs in September last were reduced by $1,647,000, and for the nine months by $13,398,000.

The Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh road reports that gross decreased $367,317 in the fourth week of October. For the month the decrease was $1,255,510.

The nine months of 1921 Missouri, Kansas & Texas reports a balance of $5,588,472 as compared with a deficit of $3,537,759 for the corresponding part of last year.

The El Paso and Southwestern road has asked authority to acquire the Arizona & New Mexico Railway. The application also proposed the issue by the El Paso & Southwestern of $3,500,000 of short term notes to finance the purchase.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul has ordered 2,500 gondola cars, valued at $5,000,000, 1,500 from Haskell & Barker Car Company, and 1,000 from Bettendorf Axle Company. Completion of the order will give the road 17,000 coal cars.

Corporation Reports

Wall Street expects Studebaker to report about $18 a share on common stock earned in 1921. Studebaker earned $15.18 a share last year.

For the August fiscal year V. Vivaudou, Inc., reports gross profits of $1,153,185 compared with $2,031,861 in the previous year. Net earnings and other income amounted to $289,881 and surplus to $38,430.

Southern California Edison Company's surplus for the first nine months of this year amounted after charges to $4,780,297, an increase of $914,996 over the corresponding period of the preceding year. Net earnings were $6,448,203, an increase of $1,386,000.

The Carbon Steel Company reports for the year ended with September a net loss of $541,399, as compared with profit of $140,040 in the preceding year. After deduction there was a deficit of $1,077,553, against a deficit of $276,400 in the preceding year.

For the nine months ended with September the Hercules Powder Company reports net of $505,760, which is equivalent after depreciation, interest and preferred dividends to 23 cents a share on common, against $1,783,776, or $20.72 a share in the corresponding period of 1920.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Nov. 7.—Further weakness in German marks, announcement of the closing of a bank at Savannah and weak cables from Liverpool exerted a bearish influence on cotton at the opening today. First prices were 13 to 24 points net lower. Trade on the whole was small and at the end of fifteen minutes the list was about 5 points up from initial levels. Opening prices were: Dec., 18.25; Jan., 18.05; Feb., 18.05; March, 18.05; May, 17.75; July, 17.30; Oct., 16.38.

Beef Lower at Wholesale

Chicago, Nov. 7.—The wholesale price of beef is below the 1914 level, according to a bulletin from the Institute of American Meat Packers. At the end of last month carcass beef sold at 11½ to 12 cents a pound. For October, 1914, the wholesale price averaged 12 cents. But retail prices for beef have not reflected the decline in wholesale prices and retail dealers do not talk of cutting prices in the immediate future.

TRADE MAY YET HAVE FAINTING SPELLS

But Evans Sees Resiliency Enough to Make Future Progress Certain

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Nov. 7. — What is is always at outs with what is to be, and what is is now telling all sorts of stories about what is to be.

In this city and vicinity one hears two distinct prophecies as to the future of business, and curiously the two cover a period of five years. Some people whose opinions are entitled to respect are intellectual enough and soulless enough to say that depression is to continue for that length of time and that big slumps will occur along the way, while officials of certain of our best corporations are declaring that a process has now begun which is to result in extraordinary activity and prosperity for half a decade. Probably both are wrong.

There is enough resiliency in business to give us a heave upward from time to time, and enough weakness in the rest of the world to cause fainting spells here.

AN IRREGULAR MOVEMENT.

Hence an irregular movement, but no doubt on a scale larger than the present one. In the iron and steel industry there is certainly a considerable improvement hereabouts. The knowledge of this fact gave American Steel Foundries a sharp up movement Saturday. The officials of that company know of no one fact that would naturally cause an upshoot just at this time, but they do report improving conditions and evidently see every reason why there should be an enhancement in the value of their stock.

The buying Saturday was no doubt dictated by the same impulse that has heretofore led to the picking up of one stock at a time as the prospects of the company became brighter.

The subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation in the Calumet district are gaining quite as much.

There is possibly a reason for advances in certain of the independent stocks in the revival of the plan for a consolidation of several companies. Inland Steel has been mentioned in this connection and the plan appears to be widening to include some units not heretofore mentioned. Three concerns at Toledo are possibilities in this connection. Inland Steel has advanced nine or ten points from the low.

INTERSTATE IS STRONG.

It is astonishing how a number of the younger companies, some of which were organized during the stress of the war, have stood up against the decline in business. The report that the Interstate Iron & Steel Co. has been called into court in response to an application for the appointment of a receiver is correct, but the action is declared to be that of disgruntled persons and to be unjustified.

The company is said to have $1,900,000 cash assets and a credit at one of the leading banks of $500,000 of which they have not half availed themselves, and to have assets of two for one against their liabilities.

One might casually call attention to the safety razor as a factor in these great affairs. There is much interest in the subject here as this implement is now finding a sale far beyond anything heretofore. The human jaw has a great potency in American business as is evidenced by the prosperity of Mr. Wrigley and also by the eloquence worked off in Congress.

But, more important, the Gillette folks claim that they can make their old type of razor for less money than it would cost to manufactur in Germany. Apply to this all internationally competitive articles and you have solved one of the big problems.

FURTHER WAGE CUTS.

Labor cost probably stands in the way of improvement in business less than is commonly supposed. There must unquestionably be further reduction in wages, but it will come rather easily, inasmuch as in Chicago and other centres the number of persons out of employment is still large.

Moreover in the majority of cases reductions have been accomplished gracefully by the workers, who have a vastly clearer knowledge of the economic principles involved than ever before.

They are not entitled to half the criticism of the public that is deserved by the large number of profiteers that we still have among us. There is still a lot of 50 and 100 per cent. profiteers in business.

The job printers of this city propose striking on Monday, the 14th, against an increase of the week from 44 to 48 hours with the same pay as at present.

Boston Financial Notes

During October Calumet & Hecla rail deliveries to Illinois foundries and rolling mills totalled 1,320,000 pounds of copper.

Bristol, Ct., has sold $1,350,000 of 5 per cent. general improvement bonds, dated November 1, 1921, and maturing in each of years 1922 to 1952 inclusive, to a syndicate composed of Watkins & Co., Redmond & Co., and Kisel, Kinnecutt & Co., at 101.892.

Present indications are that Ventura Consolidated Oil Fields will show at the end of this year a surplus equal to about $4 per share on the 600,000 shares outstanding after allowing for taxes at the same rate as in 1920.

Copper production by East Butte is about 1,500,000 pounds a month and it is making a profit on operations.

During September Cobalt district silver ore shipments are estimated to have totalled 230.26 tons. More than half of the ore came to the United States.

It is reported by G. M. Haffards & Company that for the fourth quarter of the current year Fall River cotton mills paid a total of $673,075 in dividends equal to 1.738 per cent. on a capitalization of $38,710,000.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Financial sentiment is becoming rather deeply impressed by the ability of the market to make headway in the face of numerous cross-currents and conflicting elements, some of which are decidedly hostile to improvement in security prices. In the opinion of some observers, the firmness that has characterized the general list may be construed as evidence of naive optimism rather than sober judgment.

THIS seems rather harsh comment in view of the fact that speculation, so far as stocks are concerned, has been relatively lethargic, while investment issues have fairly boomed. The turnover in bonds has been exceptionally large and U. S. government obligations, as well as the better class of foreign bonds, have shown pronounced strength and activity. This demand may be construed more as a reflection of the improved money situation than evidence of confidence in the business outlook. It was pointed out before in this column that growing ease in the credit situation has not developed so much along the lines of releasing funds to borrowers for industrial purposes, as to institutional investment—which might be of a temporary character—in gilt-edged issues. In other words, banks seem more inclined to put their funds temporarily in irreproachable securities, instead of loaning them out to individuals for the prosecution of the industrial and business ventures. In this respect, it has been pointed out, the current investment demand may be somewhat deceptive. Abundant funds and reluctance to support individual borrowers may have led to the present investment movement.

CHEERFUL sentiment in the stock market is stimulated largely by evidences of improvement in the domestic business and industrial situation and the belief that the old disturbing factors have lost their influence to a great extent. Increased activity in the textile industry, the improvement in the statistical position of copper, advances in the prices of crude oil, gains in the pig iron output, and the sentimental effect of the lower Federal Reserve re-discount rates are accepted as sufficient to overcome opposing factors. Moreover, the position of certain special groups of stocks has responded favorably to the improvement in the general trade situation. Among these are what are known as the merchandising and chain store stocks. All are doing a greatly increased business, and some, judging from inside reports, have been able to convert their merchandising efficiency into legitimate profits.

ONLY the future can tell the extent to which these favorable elements are offset by other factors. It would seem that the decline in German marks might be ignored as a market influence. The intensive activity of the governmental printing presses cannot disguise the fact that Germany is importing heavily of raw materials, including cotton and copper, and that her population is leading all Europe in the production of manufactured goods.

IT is not so simple to gloss over other unfavorable features. There has been a disconcerting recrudescence of labor troubles—the threat of a widespread coal strike, violence attending the walkout of the milk drivers of New York, and a general attitude of resistance to wage readjustment on the part of industrial labor. This opposition comes in the face of an economic demand for a revision that will bring wages more in line with the prices for agricultural products. Here, the slump in prices, particularly in the cereals, has reached a point where the reduced purchasing power of agriculture will react disastrously upon industrial labor.

LAST but not least, the vacillation and demagogy of Congress keep the business world in a state of continued anxiety. No one can foretell the tariff outcome, taxation revision is up in the air, and the bonus plan is revived under the sponsorship of a few Senatorial firebrands who seem to be unaware of the load of taxation which the country already is carrying. It is a question whether the nascent optimism of the financial community will be able to make progress in the face of such obstacles.

WALDORF HELD THE LEAD IN BOSTON

Local Market Starts Strong, but Becomes Irregular; Curb Prices Lower

The Boston market had a strong opening, but reflected the New York trend later in the morning and became irregular. Waldorf continued to attract attention, being active and selling at a new 1921 high. National Leather was another leader and sold at a new low for the year. Trading was of fair volume but it was narrow. Point or more gains were made by Mohawk, American Sugar preferred and Edison. Boston & Maine B preferred three points and Boston & Maine D two. Mexican Investment sagged a point. American Telephone advanced a trifle, but it was enough to take to a new year high.

Small gains were made by Boston & Maine A, Greenfield Tap, Elder, New Cornelia and Utah Metal. Issues to recede fractionally include Calumet & Arizona, North Butte, Island Creek, United Shoe, Carson Hill, Eastern Steamship and John T. Connor. By noon there were more stocks to show losses than gains. Packing issues were neglected.

CURB MARKET WEAK.

The Curb market was weak and very quiet. It opened on a lower level and showed but little improvement. The most active issues in early trading were Boston & Montana, Eureka and Mutual. At the end of the morning Boston & Montana was up 2 cents at 97 cents, Bagdad 2 cents at 29 cents and Arizona Tip Top half a cent at 5½ cents. Among losses were Mutual 2 cents at 55 cents, Alpha 4 cents at 36 cents, Crystal 2 cents at 37 cents, Daddy 1 cent at 10 cents, Hecla Divide 1 cent at 8 cents, Colorado Ext 1 cent at 64 cents and International Sugar ⅛ at 1⅛.

LEGION ASSURED BONUS BILL IS TO BE PASSED

New England Delegates Return From Convention Loud in Praise of Kansas City

Definite assurance has been given from high administration circles in Washington that the American Legion's five-fold compensation measure will be passed at the next session of Congress without being returned to committee, according to a statement made by Henry W. Shea of Fall River, who represented the New England delegation to the national convention in Kansas City on the legislative committee.

Shea made his statement at the final caucus of the delegation Sunday afternoon on the train, en route from Montreal to Boston. The seventy-odd members of the delegation, including men from Vermont, New Hampshire and eastern Massachusetts, gathered in a coach to hear reports from various committee men.

Shea declared that the assurance as to the passage of the bonus bill came from an entirely authoritative administration source, and said that it can be taken as final. During the convention the delegates had been told by members of the legislative committee that an understanding in regard to the bonus bill had been reached.

The party reached the North Station at 8:40 p. m. Western Massachusetts delegates had left the train to transfer at White River Junction, Vt., while most of the Maine delegates came home on an earlier train. But the bulk of the New Englanders were in last night's party.

John P. Holland, liasion officer of the Legion at the veterans' bureau for the first district, said that Colonel C. R. Forbes, head of the bureau, had promised that the bureau's work in New England will be speeded up along all lines of its activity.

At the close of the caucus on the train the delegates voted a resolution of thanks to John English and John Hancock, who were in charge of the party, securing rooms, meals, berths and the like. The men asserted that these men had done their work in an altogether praiseworthy manner.

The delegates had nothing but words of praise for Kansas City as a convention city, declaring that they had been received with a whole-hearted welcome whose sincerity they could not doubt.

"Why, thing were done there that would have caused Boston to call out the reserves and declare martial law," said one delegate, "But in Kansas City they just laughed and took it as a matter of course."

A number of women delegates to the National Auxiliary convention arrived in Boston on the same train.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practising physician for 17 years and Calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

HERO WOODFILL TELLS HOW HE KILLED 19

Describes Crowded Two Hours on Argonne When He Won Highest Honors

Sergeant Woodfell, one of the big heroes of the war, today wrote for Universal Service, in his own way, the story of the incident on the Argonne battlefield when he killed nineteen Germans in two hours of fighting. For this exploit he was designated by General Pershing as the "greatest of the great." His story follows:

By SERGEANT SAMUEL WOODFILL.

As a first lieutenant I was sent to the Sixtieth U. S. Infantry of the Fifth Division late in 1917. My regiment embarked at Hoboken and sailed on the transport Philadelphia, April 16, 1918. While in active training at Hadol Basse and Hadel Haute, during which we did principally patrolling, I met with a severe accident which sent me to the hospital.

On August 22, 1918, the regiment was relieved in Alsace and started marching to the St. Mihiel sector. Our mission here having been completed under Major Lee D. Davis, we proceeded to Biercourt in the Argonne by truck, arriving there October 4.

While advancing in the Argonne enemy machine gunners and artillery concentrated a heavy fire on us. Some dropped into shell holes.

FORCED TO COVER.

I was forced to take cover in a dummy trench, not deep enough to hide the pack on my back. They kept up a heavy string of fire, knocking dirt and rock over me and puncturing my raincoat. Fritz had me guessing.

I wrote a farewell note on the back of a little photo of a dear loved one, my wife. I did not expect to survive. However, the enemy, being pushed by Yankee troops, suddenly ceased firing. This was while relieving the 319th Infantry. The relief was completed.

At daylight, October 12, we were ordered over the top for combat reconnaissance. A terrific barrage forced us to dig in for shelter. The enemy was heavily entranched and shrouded. I saw the necessity for quick action and, by signalling men to follow me, I crept, by detouring, on a gun position I could see.

I slid my rifle forward, raised on my elbows, and killed five gunners in the pit. One enemy gunner attempted to retreat. I killed him with my pistol.

I dashed to cover of brush and ran into an officer in hiding. He attempted to disarm me. I killed him with my automatic.

There was continuous firing by this time. The enemy had been seeping through and was sweeping the woods with fire. Having lost control of my company in the dense wilderness, I continued to advance by taking cover.

GERMANS CRY "KAMERAD!"

I located another machine gun after a short distance. Crawling to a flank position I sniped (killed) five of the crew and silenced the gun. I crept closer to it and encountered three Germans carrying ammunition to the gun I had just silenced. We saw each other at the same time. They yelled "Kamerad!" and dropped their equipment. I captured and sent them to the rear.

I advanced but a short distance when I encountered a third machine gun and, using the same methods I had before applied, I worked my way to a flank and killed five of the gunners as they took their places at the gun. Heavy overhead fire forced me to jump into an enemy trench for cover.

As I dashed into it I nearly jumped on two Germans crouching there. One of them reached for his luger, I fired first. He doubled up.

The second was reaching for his rifle. I squeezed my trigger, but my automatic failed to go off.

I dropped it and seized an intrenching tool nearby and dealt a crushing blow on his head, and as I turned I saw the other had regained his pistol and he was dispatched in the same manner.

This is my version of the actual conflict.

CHURCH APPEAL IN DRIVE FOR 'SALLIES'

Ministers From Pulpits Urge Aid Toward Securing $200,000 Fund

The Salvation Army drive for $200,000 was the subject of appeal in many of the churches of Greater Boston. It was pointed out that the Army had done a work in Boston among all classes of people such as could not easily be done by any one church or denomination. It found the people who needed practical help and not only attended to their immediate wants but gave them new hope and encouragement.

It found the outcast woman and helped her in the time of her greatest need; it found the tired and worn out mothers and gave them assistance, and it took the starving children of the slums and gave them an opportunity to see the green fields and the sunshine at their Summer camp.

The result of the appeal in the churches will be felt this coming week and the help will be grateful to the committee which is conducting the campaign for the Salvation Army.

There will be a meeting of the chairmen of the committees at 12:30 p. m. today in Master Builders' Hall, No. 166 Devonshire street, and it is expected that most of the 106 chairmen will attend. Only about half of them have turned in reports so far.

A feature of the drive this week will be a "sale of doughnuts" in the hotels by about 100 young women in charge of Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames. Some of the men who sampled the "Sally" doughnuts at the front, in France, will aid in this sale.

Subscriptions may be sent to Allan Forbes, treasurer of the State Street Trust, or to the Salvation Army Drive Headquarters, No. 166 Devonshire street.

BATTERY OF 75'S WILL FIRE ARMISTICE SALUTE

New Bedford, Nov. 7.—A battery of French 75's, which three years ago were engaged in hurling shells into the German army, will be used this year for the firing of the twenty-one gun salute for Armistice Day. Members of Battery D, formerly of the 101st Field Artillery, will man the guns that will fire the salute. All of the members of this unit are World War veterans.

NORTH SAUGUS CAR LINE REOPENS THIS WEEK

Saugus, Nov. 7.—North Saugus residents are looking forward to the reopening of the trolley car line in that section. It has been closed to traffic for more than two years. The work of relaying the tracks on the Lynnhurst-North Saugus route has been completed, and it is expected that the first car will run early this week.

Lyman School Boy Disappears

Taunton, Nov. 7.—The Lyman School fails to attract Roy Blakely and as a result of his apparent dislike to enforced confinement the Taunton youngster has left the institution. He returned only last week, having escaped about two months ago. When questioned by the police at that time, he admitted that he and a chum had broken into the Tripp Bottling establishment the night before he was picked up by Patrolman Frank Gribbon.

HARVARD WILL CONFER DEGREE ON FOCH

Plan to Have Marshal Address Undergraduates in Memorial Hall When He Visits Here

Extensive preparations at Harvard assure Marshal Foch of an honorary degree when he visits the university next Monday.

Exercises are to be held in Sanders Theatre at 4 o'clock, and the Corporation, Board of Overseers and deans have been delegated to escort the French hero to the theatre and occupy seats on the platform.

After the exercises, Marshal Foch will speak briefly to the undergraduates gathered in Memorial Hall, and will then proceed to University Hall, where he will be given a reception by the faculty and their wives. President Lowell on all three occasions will introduce the Marshal.

Marshal Joffre during his visit to this country in 1917 was given the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws by Harvard, and this will very likely be the university decoration Foch will receive.

RED CROSS DRIVE TO OPEN FRIDAY

The slow construction of a big cross on the wall of a Tremont street office building will mark the progress for the drive for funds which the Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the American Red Cross will launch on Armistice Day.

The cross, when completed, will contain twenty blocks. A block will be inserted in the outline for every $10,000 that is collected. The drive will extend to Thanksgiving Day and throughout its course the Red Cross will have its representatives in stores, hotels and stations in all parts of the city.

GOLFERS REPRESENTED AT TELLIER FUNERAL

Many golf devotees attended the funeral services at Newton Cemetery Chapel for Louis Tellier, the Brae-Burn Country Club professional, who committed suicide by hanging in a hut on the golf links. Rev. Frederick Nicholson conducted the services, and burial was at the Newton Cemetery, which is near the Brae-Burn Club. A spray of roses from the New England Golfers' Association was among the floral tributes.

BOSTON SWEDISH FOLK HONOR LAND'S FIRST KING

Tremont Temple was filled to capacity by people of Swedish descent, who celebrated the 400th anniversary of the birth of Gustavus Vasa, the great king who defeated the Danish invaders and established the independence of Sweden. Carl W. Johansson, Swedish Vice-Consul here, was chief speaker. A chorus of 250 men and women sang.

NOVEMBER 7, 1921 BOSTON

No Defence of Pelletier or Coakley Intended

Yet It Would Be Consistent to Do This and at the Same Time Support Mr. Murphy's Candidacy

We have received a letter more insolent than intelligent, objecting to an editorial which appeared in this column entitled "Blackmail a la Boston.' The writer as may be supposed from his discourteous language is anonymous. He berates the Boston American because "it defends Pelletier and Coakley."

The Boston American has not defended Mr. Pelletier or Mr. Coakley, nor has it condemned either of them. All this newspaper did in the editorial to which our correspondent objects was to say that charges and rumors and gossip are not proof, and that journals of general circulation ought not to publish such accounts of the situation in Boston as will lead their readers to believe that Mr. Pelletier and Mr. Coakley are guilty before credible evidence is presented against them.

The Boston American pays attention to this insolent and anonymous letter only because it asks a question which we think may need answering generally. That question is, "How can you consistently defend Coakley and Pelletier and support Mr. Murphy?"

The answer to this question is simple. In the first place, as we have explained above, the Boston American is not defending either of these gentlemen. It is simply doing the decent thing. It is refusing to believe the charges against these gentlemen until they are proved.

Again, it would be perfectly consistent both to defend these gentlemen and to support Mr. Murphy for Mayor. As the Boston American tried to explain in an editorial Friday, the conduct of Mr. Pelletier in the office of District Attorney is not a proper issue in the campaign for Mayor. The Constitution and the laws of this State have provided Mr. Pelletier with another constituency to which he may appeal. That constituency is the people of Suffolk County who elected him and who if they approve of his conduct, and he gives them half a chance, will reelect him in spite of any action which his enemies may take. Mr. Murphy has not accused Mr. Pelletier of misconduct in office. There is no controversy between Mr. Murphy and Mr. Pelletier concerning Mr. Pelletier's conduct as District Attorney. Mr. Murphy is running for office of Mayor of Boston and not for the office of District Attorney.

The law provides that the District Attorney for Suffolk County shall be chosen by the people of Suffolk County. That means, of course, that the people of Suffolk County shall direct the policy of the District Attorney within the law; that means that the people of Suffolk County shall control and be the sole judges of the acts of discretion of the District Attorney, and not the Supreme Court. When the Supreme Court undertakes to control the discretion of the District Attorney by virtue of a law passed by the Legislature, it is elevating a power given by the Legislature above a power given by the Constitution itself, for the power given to the Supreme Court is a power given by the Legislature, and the power given to the people of Suffolk County to elect their District Attorney is a power given by the Constitution.

Our readers will understand the inconsistency of the attempt of the Supreme Court to control the discretion of our District Attorneys when they consider that the authority of the Legislature to give the Supreme Court such a power comes from the Constitution, for all the power of the Legislature is given it by the Constitution, and the Legislature, of course, cannot take away from any public officer power given him by the very Constitution which gives the Legislature itself all its power.

Now the Boston American will support Mr. Pelletier on the issues concerning which we think he is right. We do not think he had any right to intrude his personal issues into the campaign for Mayor and still less has he a right to mix up those issues with race and religious appeals, for it is quite obvious that a vote given him upon an appeal to the race or religious bigotry of any element in Boston is not a vote vindicating him in his conduct in office.

As we understand it the Supreme Court will not be able to pass upon the charges against him until next Fall, when the day for the election of a District Attorney is close at hand. Then is his chance and then will be his right to appeal to the people of his district and to present his case. He does himself a great injustice and he throws doubt on his own confidence in his case when he intrudes himself in this mayoralty campaign and opens it with an attempt to fasten upon John R. Murphy the absurd charge that the Loyal Coalition is supporting him.

16 Miles an Hour---Excessive

And Other Short Things

Copyright, 1921, Star Company.

It is hard to judge a thing, unless you have something with which to compare it. A picture of the Rock of Gibraltar would look like any little stone, unless there were a ship at the base. Joe Perritto, fined $35 for overdriving his horse, is the comparison that tells just what the automobile can do.

The traffic policeman had to go 16 MILES AN HOUR to catch the horse, about ready to drop, because of "the terrific speed."

And any one of millions of automobiles could go twice as fast, and keep it up all night and all day.

The earth under your feet turns 1,000 miles an hour. We don't notice it. We don't notice our own mental and scientific progress—but it is constant.

Mrs. Babe Ruth had a fine birthday party. There was a $4,000 fur coat, and the Bambino's bride wore one diamond for each home run made by her husband in 1921. May every Babe Ruth celebration be like this year's, with more home runs, more diamonds and more fur coats, BUT—

There are men out of work and out of money now, to whom not long ago money was coming in about as rapidly as it comes now to Babe Ruth. Some of them wish, now, that they could have looked ahead. "He IS a good fellow" has a pleasant sound. But "He WAS a good fellow when he HAD it," sounds gloomy.

From London comes announcement that England is in favor of wiping out all debts among nations engaged in the recent war.

That would include wiping out ten thousand million dollars owed to the United States. England would forgive Russia's debt to her of more than two thousand millions, Italy's debt of about two thousand millions, France's debt of two billion two hundred and twenty-eight million, and some little odds and ends totaling nearly eight thousand millions.

Then she would expect America to forgive England's debt of about five thousand millions. Not a bad business suggestion, from England's point of view.

If this country decides to wipe out obligations, charging it up to experience, that is one thing. There shouldn't be any talk about "See how generous I am; you do the same."

Fisherman's Luck

Temperamental Bird

THE raven is a bird among birds, self-reliant and formidable. Naturalists call him the most wary, the most amusing, the cleverest of birds. He is also described as grave, dignified and sedate. The bill of the raven is a formidable weapon, strong, stout, sharp at the edges and curved toward the tip. It is his one weapon of offence, but it answers the purpose of two or three.

Like the dirk of the old-time plainsman, it is available as a dagger or a carving-knife; and it can also be used as a pair of pincers. With one blow it can kill a rat, and the raven can easily drive it through the spines of a hedgehog. If it is true that the raven will never attack a man, probably it is not so much from lack of courage as from the bird's keen intellectual perception of what is unwise.

Like most of his tribe the raven is omnivorous; his dietary ranges from "a worm to a whale." When his nest is built beneath some overhanging rock you can often discover its position by the remains of a rabbit neatly laid in the short grass at the top of the cliff. In districts where food is scarce the raven will attack without scruple a newly-born lamb.

Fun Flashes

REASONING IT OUT.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith had been invited to a friend's for tea, and the time had arrived for preparing for the visit. "Come along, dearie" said Mrs. Smith to her three-year-old son, "and have your face washed." "Don't want to be washed," came the reply. "But," said mother, "you don't want to be a dirty boy, do you? I want my little boy to have a nice clean face for the ladies to kiss." Upon this persuasion he gave way, and was washed. A few minutes later he stood watching his father washing. "Ha, ha, daddy!" he cried. "I know why you're washing!"

THE INQUIRING MIND.

Willie: "Pa, teacher says we are here to help others." Pa: "Of course we are." Willie: "Well, what are the others here for?"

THE COMMON EXPERIENCES OF LIFE REVEAL YOU

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

ALMOST as though we were members of different species—so differently do we use life and its chances and mischances.

For instance, see how variously people carry the bit of knowledge which they acquire in the course of a lifetime and which, even with the most learned, is so pathetically small!

Commonly, the less they have, the more ridiculously they strut about and prate in peacock pride of intellect. Verily, "a little learning is a dangerous thing!"

On the contrary, the wisest are the humblest, knowing their ignorance and the humiliating vastness of the unknown. Therefore, are they modest and reverent and resilient.

So with the acquisition of wealth. Many grow poorer in spirit the richer they become in material means. Of all good things, money is the most dangerous, if ever it becomes an end in itself rather than merely the serviceable means to finer ends.

Exalt Poverty

Many rich folks make wealth despicable. But they help, by their degradation, to exalt the face of honest poverty.

On the other hand, there are many who find wealth an opportunity for the enrichment of life. With increase of means, they grow in grace and culture and refinement and generosity and general usefulness.

By high example, they advance the standards of our democratic civilization.

The public benefactions which spring from private wealth have become everywhere so beautiful a commonplace that we take them now as matters of course.

Incidentally, the rich have so generally developed a sense of social responsibility that they illustrate the educative power of democracy.

They have fallen under the altruistic spell, which makes the average of us eager for the chance of mutual helpfulness.

The rich, with the rest of us, recognize the people as the source of wealth, and as, therefore, entitled to the use of riches for the general good.

Consider next our common experiences of joy and grief. There are those who are intoxicated with their joys. They radiate their happiness and spread afar its beneficent contagion.

Others take their joy soberly, as though it were a stolen and secret indulgence. Still others are selfish in their pleasures, ignorant of the proverbial wisdom that joys shared are joys doubled.

Differ in Conduct

Probably, we differ more strikingly in our conduct under great grief than in the grip of any other human experience. The range of variation is amazing!

Many, perhaps unconsciously, love grief—especially the sorrow brought by death. Others, again, are piteously overcome, even to the point of temporary irrationality. Still others find relief from otherwise unbearable sorrow by discussing their loss and thus making it at once more real and less real.

On the other hand, many are promptly ennobled by the personal experience of death, as though the grim visitant had knighted them and made them wise and active members in the Order of Universal Sympathy.

Such bear their grief with noble dignity, and they bless with the beauty of their brave spirits all who are privileged to approach them in their bereavement.

There are some who are temperamentally so close akin to sorrow, that they seem to extend their arms to its visitation, hug it close when it has come, and reluctantly allow it to depart.

There are others—fine, stoic souls!—who hold head high in the face of disaster, carry their grief with inward strength and in silence, summoning all their reserves of spiritual power.

These are they whose souls are unstung by death and undefeated by the grave.

And thus we variously reveal ourselves, by the way in which we bear the common experiences of life.

Every vital experience is a chapter of your autobiography.

Letter to the Editor

"Evolution"

Editor Boston American:

Low wages, long hours, unjust treatment brought unionism. Unionism brought higher wages, better working conditions and personnel. Failure of employers to treat with their employes brought the walking delegate. Walking delegate brought the strike. Strike brought trouble.

Business brought railroads. Railroads brought business and money. Money brought the railroads into Wall Street. Wall Street brought railroads ruin. Ruin brought increased rates and fares. Increased fares brought auto trucking and pleasure cars. High rates and auto brought stagnation.

Post mortem: The Woolworth building was built by nickel and dime sales. The railroads were more prosperous, their stocks were valuable, paid better dividends in all their history when the rates and fares were lowest. Low rates mean crowded trains and cars, which support the roads.

What the railroads really need is a good honest house-cleaning both upstairs and down.

HYGIENIC LEGISLATION.

"What makes you so late with the milk these mornings?" asked Mrs. Bolton. "Well, you see, ma'am," answered the milkman, "the law doesn't allow us any more than twenty-five thousand bacteria to the gallon, an' you wouldn't believe how long it takes to count the little varmints!"

WIFE WHO IS CHEERFUL DESERVES THE BEST

By Winifred Black

HERE she is again—My Own Correspondent. Every once in a while, just when every one is telling how poor and ill and lonesome and abused and neglected and tired of living and disgusted with human nature they are—along comes My Own Correspondent, with a letter that's like a fresh breeze from the salt sea on a hot and sultry day.

Here's one that came this morning:

"DEAR WINIFRED BLACK:

"Almost two years, and very little change. Yes, my 'problems' have grown—they are now 3½ and 1¼. My dear boy trying so hard to grow up; my darling girl, no longer a baby. She is one of the little girls that makes a hop over night from babyhood to little girlhood and, by-the-same-token, some day I'll wake up with a young lady in the house. All I ask is strength and patience to make a success of my job.

"Today I read your article on the 'Clinging Vine.' It is true that men like to be the mainstay of the household. But why not let them? I'm kind-a-fat and not handsome, but my big man doesn't care, he does the labor and I keep the house going, the kiddies clean and the clothes made and mended. Really I think we both do our share.

"I am sending this and the other letter, 'Dist-a-fun,' as Sonny says. So, laugh if circumstances permit. As of old.

"READER."

Lucky? No, Wise!

There, now isn't that a relief and a lesson?

A sermon and a laugh—all in one?

Yes, of course you're lucky, dear Correspondent, and of course you're happy, and as for that husband of yours, I hope he says a little prayer in the very heart of his heart every day to think he had sense enough to choose you out of all the world, and brains enough to appreciate you when he got you.

Lucky? You ought to thank your stars every hour of your life for your husband and your two little tykes—how chubby their little hands must be and how clear their eyes! Do you ever call your little boy to you and look deep, deep into the crystal of his innocent eyes, and feel that your very soul is bathed and refreshed?

Your little girl—when she looks at you with all the love and trust and confidence of her nature—how it warms your heart! How cold the world is when these fires of love go out upon the hearth.

But, most of all, be grateful for your own good sense and your own good disposition, because they are the two best friends you've got. Make no mistake about that.

If you were a silly, shallow hearted little goose, you'd be "pining" because your husband couldn't buy you a motor car or a string of real pearls or something that you don't need at all.

Also "Kind-a-Nice"

Or you'd be following him down to his office and suspecting him of being in love with every stenographer in the place. Or you'd go to the movies and imagine yourself the heroine—misunderstood and unappreciated.

Good for you, My Own Correspondent! Never mind about being "kind-a-fat." You're "kind-a-nice," too, I'll tell you, and I don't wonder that your husband and children idolize you.

Here's to you and your kind—you're good bread and meat and the rich, wholesome milk and cream of life.

The world could never get along without you.

TAKING STOCK

Business men have to take an inventory of their stock at certain stated intervals to know how they stand.

You are a business unto yourself—what is your stock worth?

Ever ask yourself these questions?

How much has my stock of knowledge increased the past year?

Is my business in better shape than one year ago—meaning in an individual, standing and earning capacity with your employer?

Have I worked according to plans or have I merely drifted?

Can I point to any special attainment during the past year?

Right now, have I any established plan for the future?

What is my position likely to be in five years at this rate?

Have I thought hard enough to accomplish anything or do I lack concentration necessary to solve my problems successfully?

If I lack concentration is it not lack of interest in my own fate?

How long before YOU wake up?

MT. EVEREST PARTY IS SURE OF SUCCESS

By Colonel Howard Bury

Leader of Mt. Everest Expedition.

Snow was drifted two feet deep in places. The coolies and baggage animals did not arrive until 11 o'clock. The Tibetans fortunately provided well-ventilated tents in which were braziers, enabling us to keep warm. Outside it was twenty-seven degrees of frost and a biting wind. From Lingbi to Phari it was an easy march of twenty miles, gently descending to Tangla. Daily, from Kharta, we have watched the snow blow off from the higher peaks of the Himalayas, indicating a monsoon over there, apparently a regular succession of gales from west or northwest in the upper air strata.

People Prosperous

After marching sixty-five miles in three days, always at an altitude of more than 16,000 feet, we had to rest our coolies for a day at Phari and also obtain fresh transport. Phari was the only place in Tibet where we had trouble in obtaining transport. The people of Phari are for the most part prosperous. We thoroughly appreciated the houses and shelter again out of the bitter winds.

At Yatung we changed our transport, getting excellent Tibetan mules which carried our baggage right through to Darjeeling. From Yantung we made a short march in perfect weather to Tgrang, our Tibetan rest house just below Jelepla. Then we continued down to Gnatonk from where we descended in one day more than 9,000 feet to Rongli, experiencing an extraordinary change in weather contrast.

In the morning we were in several inches of snow, while the afternoon we spent among the sweet scents of a tropical jungle of bright-colored birds and ripe oranges. The Tibetan mules came along splendidly, easily making the steep, trying descent.

Expedition Successful

The expedition accomplished what it set out to do. All the approaches to Everest, from northeast to west, were reconnoitered. A possible route to the summit was found on the northeast ridge. Only a series of violent storms prevented a much greater height being attained.

The sherpa coolies were a great success. They worked willingly and many of them seemed not to feel the altitude at all. We also picked up a few Tibetans en route. These proved to be among the best but were unfortunately handicapped by a useless unworthy coolie brother. But he was left behind at a base camp. There was never the slightest trouble with the others, of whom most are volunteers for the next expedition. They kept in excellent health always.

The surveyors, under Morshead, mapped an area of more than 13,000 square miles, under great difficulties, of a country previously unknown. Wheeler has a photographic survey on a scale of two inch to the mile of the whole Everest group. Heron investigated the geology of the whole district, finding many outcrops of limestone which tentatively revealing the secret of the age of the Himalayas.

Complete Collection

Wollaston has a most complete collection of all the mammals and birds of the regions we visited, also a wonderful flora which he has taken great pains to investigate. He is bringing home a big collection of seeds of flowers, many of which we hope are new.

A glorious country, with some of the most wonderful views in the world about which nothing before was ever known now has been explored and mapped thoroughly and systematically, some of the greatest beauties of nature hitherto unknown and hidden from the white man have been photographed.

For nature lovers in her wildest and greatest moods, such scenes as we witnessed are undying and an unforgotten joy to end of their days.

GREATLY DISAPPOINTED.

Mother: "Well, Timothy, how did you like your visit to aunt's farm?" Little Timothy: "I was disappointed, mother. I discovered that cow's milk was not so cold as the milk we get in the city, and that the hen's eggs are about the same size."
